Regents Back Exon's Proposal To Compare NU With Big 8

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon Thursday offered to appoint a special commission to study the best schools in the Big 8 and determine how well the University of Nebraska fares in comparison.

The NU Board of Regents promptly endorsed the idea, and President D. B. Varner said he would go to work immediately to find the funds to pay for the research.

Making a personal appearance at the regents' regular monthly meeting, Exon was asked for a preview of his budget recommendations for the university.

That, he said, he was not ready to provide.

But during the ensuing discussion he noted, "We hear a lot about the five-year plan, and still we are never able to establish how well the people support the NU System."

The five-year plan proposes that NU move to the top of the Big 8 within this decade, a goal Varner has often lobbied for.

"If you think it's wise," Exon offered, "possibly I could appoint a commission to go into the other top three institutions in the Big 8, to make a thorough evaluation of how much professors are paid, what the programs are, how much should be contributed as far as support of higher education."

"Possibly a study would answer how we fare in the Big 8," Exon said.

He noted some have said Nebraska must not be concerned by such questions, but he said he disagreed.

"The facts are clear we are in comparison with other Big 8 schools," Exon said.

He noted NU hired Thursday one of the top administrators from the University of Colorado, and he complimented Varner on that appointment. "We're successful in obtaining some top-quality people from top-quality institutions," said Exon.

"It's hard to know how good we are," Varner conceded after Exon concluded his remarks. But he said he would "thoroughly endorse" the governor's suggestion.

"The faculty and the chancellors have felt if we have the resources available equal to the top level in the Big 8 our job is to make NU competitive," said Varner. "If we don't have the resources, if we could get them we could compete."

Such a study, said Varner, would "Give all of us a framework to give to our mission."

As adopted, the board's motion urged Exon to appoint such a commission to study all Big 8 institutions, determine which are the best and why and provide comparisons with NU.

Exon also told the board he had "arrived at some tentative budgets" for NU and other state agencies, but he said the tax-cutting action by the State Board of Equalization had forced him to study budgets again.

He specifically noted the board's three Republicans, with the support of State Sens. Terry Carpenter and Richard Marvel, had voted to cut back the income tax in 1974.

That, said Exon, will cause a "$25 million loss in cash flow" next year. Thus, he said, "We are now taking another look at all this."

In other remarks, Exon said he was "tired of hearing who gets treated better" among the NU campuses and said "most thinking and knowledgeable people" support the 1968 decision to create the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

He also told the board he believes the NU President, the board and the System office should represent the university in the Legislature with one voice. Individual campuses or departments should not lobby for themselves, he said.

"We have enough problems in higher education in this land without playing off one group against another," he said.

Hiram Scott Plan OKd

With the blessings of Gov. J. James Exon, the University of Nebraska Board of Regents has voted to accept ownership of Hiram Scott College and transform it into the headquarters of the NU Panhandle Experiment Station.

Ford Becomes Vice President

He Stresses Hope For National Unity

. . . Oath Taken In House

Washington (AP) — Gerald R. Ford was sworn in as the nation's 40th vice president Thursday night, becoming the first man to take office under the Constitution's 25th Amendment.

With President Nixon at Ford's side and with Mrs. Ford holding the Bible, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger administered the 71-word oath in the House chamber. Among those present were the Cabinet, members of the House and Senate, Supreme Court justices and the diplomatic corps.

The four Ford children were in the distinguished visitors' gallery and the public galleries were packed.

In a brief speech stressing the hope for national unity that has been his theme since his nomination, Ford said he saw neither Republicans nor Democrats in the chamber.

"At this moment of visible and living unity," Ford said, "I see only Americans.

"I see Americans who love their country, Americans who work and sacrifice for their country and their children. I see Americans who pray without ceasing for peace among all nations and for harmony at home."

In prepared remarks for the Senate afterward, Ford said he was grateful to senators for confidence they expressed "in the capacity of our political institutions to meet new challenges without the extremes of passion and partisanship that have brought less sturdy republics to ruin."

Ford was sworn in just over an hour after the House, by a 387 to 35 vote, completed Congress' confirmation of his nomination as vice president.

Republicans broke into applause as the electronic vote counters on each end of the House chamber hit an absolute majority of 218 votes for Ford's confirmation.

Afterward, the full House and spectators jamming the public galleries applauded as Ford himself entered the chamber and joined Speaker Carl Albert on the speaker's podium.

Ford, who has been House Republican leader, had served in the same chamber for 25 years.

During an intermission between the confirmation and the swearing-in ceremony, Ford went to the White House to deliver his confirmation resolution to Nixon.

When he returned to the House for the ceremony, Ford, accompanied by Nixon, was greeted with enthusiastic cheers, whistles and applause from Democrats as well as Republicans.

Ford took oath solemnly until he stumbled on the words near the end and broke into his broad, familiar smile.

Most of the House debate on Ford's nomination had been in his favor.

"The action we are taking today is unprecedented in the history of the United States," said Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., as the House debate began on Ford's confirmation.

"That he will do honor to the office is unquestionable," Anderson said. "... He will help restore the faith of the people in their elected officials."

But Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., who directed Ford's House confirmation investigation, announced he would vote against Ford as a protest to President Nixon's civil rights and human rights policies.

And Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., said House Republicans should urge Nixon's impeachment or resignation to make Ford president and save their own political futures.

But Ford generally was praised by both Democrats and Republicans during the sparsely attended House debate before the confirmation vote.

The Senate confirmed Ford's nomination 92 to 3 last week.

The vice presidency had been vacant for just over two months following Spiro T. Agnew's resignation before he pleaded no contest Oct. 10 to a federal tax evasion charge.

Ford was elected to the House in 1948 and unseated crusty Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck in 1965 with the help of a reform group of young Republicans.

He led Republican opposition to the late Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society programs and then herded all but a few of President Nixon's programs through the House.

Ford generally supported the President's programs not only because he was House Republican leader but because, he said, the two men share about the same beliefs and philosophies.

"In the broadest sense," Ford testified at House confirmation hearings, "I am — and I think he is — conservative in fiscal affairs, a moderate in domestic affairs and a liberal in foreign policy."

Rationing's Start May Be March 1

Washington (AP) — The Nixon administration will not ration gasoline before March 1, federal energy director William E. Simon said Thursday.

In testimony before the Senate Government Operations Committee, Simon indicated the start of a rationing program might take even longer, once any decision to ration is made.

That decision will be made this month, Simon said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told Simon the nation is wasting one million barrels of oil each day that the rationing decision is delayed.

Baby Is Found At State Capitol

A premature baby was found in a first-floor women's restroom at the State Capitol at 3:30 Thursday afternoon, according to police.

A state employe found the baby girl, believed to weigh about four pounds, wrapped in a towel, police said. The girl had apparently been born several hours before she was found.

The infant was listed in "good" condition at Lincoln General Hospital Thursday evening, according to the State Patrol. She was scheduled to be transferred to the neo-natal intensive care unit at St. Elizabeth Health Center.

Police and the patrol were searching for a black woman in her 20's, about 5 feet, 8 inches tall, with a medium build and wearing a green shawl.

Highways In Several States Clear Of Truck Blockades

By United Press International

Major highways across several states Thursday night were clear of thousands of trucks which for four days blocked traffic in protests by drivers against high fuel prices and low speeds.

State governments took get-tough tactics to move the big rigs off highways, with riot-equipped state patrolmen smashing windows and using tear gas to clear the Ohio Turnpike, one of the worst-affected roads. Police said 1,700 trucks were in blockades on Ohio highways at the peak of Thursday's demonstration.

By Thursday night, truckers were gathering alongside some highways but authorities reported traffic flowing smoothly.

Angry truckers in Arkansas and South Dakota warned of nationwide action next week. In Brinkley, Ark., Monroe County Sheriff Larry Morris said one of three truck drivers arrested for bloacking traffic told him drivers planned blockades for Dec. 14, 15 and 16.

The Ohio and South Dakota demonstrations were a continuation of protests by mostly independent drivers that have snarled traffic periodically since monday in Pennsylvania, Indiana Delaware, Michigan, Arkansas, New York Connecticut, New Jersey and Virginia.

In Ohio, about 100 patrolmen and 125 drivers held a tense confrontation Thursday on the turnpike eight miles west of Elyria before the drivers were persuaded to get moving.

Troopers moved onto the turnpike just west of Cleveland and at Toledo to break up roadblocks of rigs which had forced a closing of almost half of the 240-mile toll road.

In Lock Haven, Pa., State police reported more than 1,000 tractor-trailers jammed around a truck stop on Interstate 80 where their drivers awaited word from Washington on demands for higher speed limits and lower fuel prices.

A White House spokesman said President Nixon was anxious to have any inequities removed in the energy conservation program, and that diesel fuel pricing structures were being examined.

Carpenter Worried . . .

Power Ties For 16 Towns Urged

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

At the behest of Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, the Legislative Council's executive board Thursday directed Nebraska power districts to provide electric interconnections with 16 incorporated towns which now have no outside source of power.

"You inform the communities we want them to make a choice on interconnection," Carpenter said. "You tell them we are considering mandatory legislation to require it."

The communities could choose between Nebraska Public Power District or one of the rural electric districts as their outside supplier.

At least two of the 16 have already negotiated agreements with NPPD, the board was told.

Carpenter is concerned that the communities be provided with an outside source of power in the event that their own generation facilities are incapacitated by the energy crisis.

"I'm worried," Carpenter said, contemplating the future.

"People may be taking to the streets. I live in the biggest house in Scottsbluff and they're gonna come after me first."

Having lived through the depression, Carpenter said, he remembers that "people get rough" when they are short of life's staples.

Carpenter told representatives of NPPD, Omaha Public Power District and the Nebraska Rural Electric Association that he wants them to understand that "the state owns the public power districts and this Legislature controls them."

Governing boards of directors manage the districts only through a delegation of authority from the Legislature, he said.

Thus, Carpenter suggested, the Legislature is ultimately responsible for supplying Nebraskans with their power needs.

"If people get on our back, you people are going to be in trouble," he declared.

Being the nation's only wholly public power state, Carpenter said, Nebraska is in "a unique position" to act in behalf of its citizens during the energy crisis.

"We should not send electricity to other areas unless it is convenient for us," he said.

And, he said, he hopes the Legislature will empower the governor to establish some priority system of electric power in case shortages do occur.

In the meantime, he said, the 16 incorporated communities which have no outside source of power must be interconnected with the state's electric grid system.

They include Alma, Beaver City, Burwell, Cambridge, Franklin, Kimball, Lyons, Ord, Oxford, Pender, Randolph, Red Cloud, Sargent, Sutherland, Wakefield and Wayne.

Power spokesmen told Carpenter they will make his wishes known to the communities, and inform him of the results.

As for supplying Nebraska power to areas outside the state, the spokesmen said only surplus power is made available to other states. Nebraska needs are always met first, they said.

But the exchange of surplus power also benefits Nebraska, they noted. Without an interchange, Nebraska would find itself short of electric supply at some peak demand periods or when equipment is shut down for maintenance.

Varner: Time Of Decision For NU

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series of articles by The Star's education and political writers about the now-federated University of Nebraska.)

By MILAN WALL
and DON WALTON
Star Staff Writers

University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner says the university in the past five years has successfully put its own house in order. Now, he believes, it's up to the state's leaders to decide if NU is to become the quality institution the state can afford.

"We've done about all we could do inside the university," said Varner, as he reflected on the years since the University of Nebraska at Omaha became part of a three-campus NU System.

"I've felt in a big way this is a two-way street," he said. "We've done internally most things that were expected of us."

"We've done our own housekeeping pretty well. But we need additional resources."

"The state can afford to support the university and higher education more handsomely," he said.

'Unequaled Affluence"

Barring some "unforseen catastrophe," Varner noted, Nebraska will soon be in an "era of unequaled economic affluence."

"It will have a record of prosperity unmatched in the state's history. Agriculture is on a new plateau of economic achievement.

D. B. Varner

"The resources are clearly there to support the university and higher education to permit it to move to the very top level in the region.

"The state has the ability if the priority is upon quality education," he said. "It's no longer a matter of what the state can afford, but what the state's leaders say is the priority."

In 1968, a state priority was something then called "merger," a legislative decision to assume ownership of the financially troubled University of Omaha.

Implementation of that decision was not yet two years old when Woody Varner left Michigan for Nebraska in 1970.

'Case For Nebraska'

He arrived at another time when NU was hoping for greater state support. He criss-crossed the state, trying to build a "case for Nebraska" to launch NU up a new road toward prosperity.

But the changing mood of the nation also hit Nebraska that year; the "golden era" of support for higher education had ended; the game had changed.

Flying across the state again this fall, said Varner, he began making a list of "some things that have happened" since he was appointed.

That list, he said, includes separation of the staffs of the Lincoln campus and the NU System, the move of the System into its own offices, establishment of a "new administrative team" with three new campus chancellors, completion of studies by management and auditing consultants, development of a five-year plan for academic quality, establishment of a single computer network for the entire university.

Comprehensive List

In addition, he noted, some academic programs were relocated to other campuses, others made inter-campus cooperative efforts. Irrigation and livestock development were emphasized, the State University of Nebraska (SUN) project was launched, statewide and regional arts programs were initiated.

How successful was the decision to create a confederation of three campuses with central System coordination?

"The answer is in the extent to which you believe coordination is successful," said Varner.

Federation
O.U. ~~MERGER~~- YES!

Geographic Pressure Absent — Varner

See Page 9

"When we talk about coordination, we tend to overlook the fact that four out of five public higher education students in the state are already coordinated (by the NU regents) and fully three out of five (of all public and private college and university students) are already coordinated by this board and its staff.

"As one contemplates coordination, what happens in the so-called merger is the most valid evidence of whether it's good or bad.

"I think it's worked effectively, but anyone who believes this type of amalgamation begins and ends with the law is not into the reality of life."

Still, he noted, "the time frame is too short to be effective. It will be 10 years before you can really sit back . . . "

Fighting In S. Vietnam 'Worst Since Cease-Fire'

(c) New York Times News Service

Saigon — The fighting in South Vietnam has reached its highest levels since the signing of the cease-fire agreement last January. While the South Vietnamese Air Force has been bombing at a scorching pace, the North Vietnamese and their Viet Cong allies have been responsible for most of the increased combat; but it is not yet clear whether they have begun their much-predicted dry season offensive.

Embargo 'No Longer Appropriate'

Washington — Secretary of State Kissinger said the United States had told the Arab states that the oil embargo was "no longer appropriate," because Washington was seeking a Middle East settlement based on the United Nations call for an Israel withdrawal from Arab territory. (More on Page 2.)

Ford Takes Office

Washington — Pledging "equal justice for all Americans," Gerald Rudolph Ford took office Thursday as the 40th vice president of the United States. Ford was sworn in at a brief ceremony at the House of Representatives just an hour after the House completed congressional confirmation of his nomination to replace Spiro T. Agnew. (More on Page 1.)

Protests Said States' Problem

Washington — The White House rejected responsibility for dealing with truckers who block highways in protest against higher fuel prices and lower speed limits, and said it was up to the states to take action. (More on Page 1.)

Fuel Leads Price Increases

Washington — Soaring fuel prices paced another big increase in the wholesale price index last month, according to the government, which reported an adjusted rise of 1.8% despite the third straight monthly decline for wholesale farm and food prices. (More on Page 3.)

Gap Due To 'Sinister Forces'?

Washington — The President's chief of staff testified that for a while White House aides had suspected that "some sinister force" had deliberately caused the 18-minute gap on one of the subpoenaed White House tapes. After his testimony, however, Alexander M. Haig Jr. said he had always believed there was an innocent explanation, and that the President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, had caused the entire 18-minute gap, and not just four or five minutes of it as she has testified. (More on Page 3.)

Rockefeller To Resign, Friend Says

New York — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's closest associate said that the governor will resign from office and turn it over to Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson so that Rockefeller can devote full time to his quest for the presidency. Subject to a last-minute change of mind, the governor is expected to resign before Christmas.

Kissinger Remains Optimistic

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger expressed doubts about the seriousness of the escalating military activity in the Middle East Thursday and predicted that an Arab-Israeli peace conference will start on schedule.

"There is no reason to doubt the conference will take place," Kissinger told a news conference. "I consider it extremely probable the conference will begin on Dec. 18 in Geneva," he stated.

One questioner asked how he could be optimistic in view of the breakdown of talks between Egyptian and Israeli generals and in light of the increased fighting in the cease-fire areas.

"We regret that the talks have been broken off," Kissinger answered, but these issues "are soluble and can be dealt with when other countries play a more active role" at the peace conference.

He explained the rise in military activities in terms of a built-in set of tensions existing in the current cease-fire situation.

"Both sides have forces in the rear of the other, both sides are in danger of encirclement" if war resumes, Kissinger said. Therefore, he reasoned, both sides "realize the danger of being surprised" and are extremely tense.

On other matters, Kissinger made these points:

—There obviously are disagreements between the United States and its European allies and he "will spare no effort to inject a new vitality" into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization during a meeting of the alliance next week in Brussels.

The United States "is not going to the meeting in a state of acrimony."

—A study by the State Department legal staff has concluded that recently passed war powers legislation which allows the President 60 days to use American military force does not apply to Vietnam.

According to the secretary, the Nixon administration remains bound by the so-called Cooper-Church amendment which prohibits the re-introduction of American military force in Indochina without prior congressional approval.

Kissinger said in any avent "I do not see this as an imminent possibility," referring to the likelihood that the Nixon administration would seek to intervene in Vietnam.

—The cease-fire in Vietnam has become a matter essentially between Vietnamese. A permanent peace "depends on their perceptions . . . of the military balance." In other words, Kissinger indicated that the future of a cease-fire in Indochina depends on whether either side feels it could win militarily.

"—I don't want to speculate," Kissinger said, when asked if recent discussions with Arab officials had indicated any change in the oil embargo policy.

Nevertheless, Kissinger said the embargo is not helpful but, he added, neither would it be helpful for the United States to discuss what if any countermeasures ultimately might be taken.

Jets Battle Over Suez

By The Associated Press

Israeli and Egyptian warplanes battled over the Gulf of Suez Thursday with each side claiming a kill.

Qualified military sources in Tel Aviv said the Egyptian 1st Army, formerly stationed in defensive positions around Cairo, had moved into a semicircle around the Israeli bridgehead on the western side of the Suez Canal.

The semicircle extends from Ismailia in the north to south of Suez City, the sources said. But they added the Israelis still maintain freedom of movement across the canal, and Egyptian movements do not affect Israeli supply routes.

Saigon Outpost Routed

Gia Nghia, South Vietnam (AP) — North Vietnamese troops on Thursday routed a government outpost near the overrun town of Kien Duc, field reports said. Kien Duc residents have fled by the thousands to this provincial capital.

The Communists threatened new and heavier attacks in the lower central highlands, where the earlier attacks took place. But they denied charges by government officials that they intend to launch an offensive to seize control of South Vietnam.

Field reports said two platoons of government militiamen — about 50 troops — pulled out after the attack by tank-led Communist troops at the post, less than five miles southwest of Kien Duc.

South Vietnamese A1 Skyraider bombers and F5 jets pounded North Vietnamese positions around Kien Duc, which was overrun Tuesday. Gia Nghia is 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

By Thursday, the population of Gia Nghia had expanded to more than 10,000, double its normal size, because of the influx of refugees from Kien Duc, most of them Montagnard tribesmen.

Officials estimated 2,000 more refugees were still on the road or in the jungles.

Arabs Begin Withdrawing Money From U.S. Banks

©The New York Times

Paris — Arab states are stepping up their economic offensive against the United States by withdrawing funds from American banks.

"The French and Swiss banks ought to be very happy because they are getting the deposits," one American commented.

The transfers may be accelerated as a result of decisions taken by Arab League economic ministers meeting the last three days in Cairo.

They were agreed "in principle" that moneys should be withdrawn from Western banks to finance local Arab development projects.

Most European and Japanese banks have already protected their flanks. The largest European and Japanese institutions are members of Arab banking consortiums, which have been organized, chiefly by the French, in the last three years to help the Arabs with development programs and to channel Arab money into Western investments.

The American institutions are more exposed. Only the Bank of America, among major American banks, has joined these consortiums.

Some American banks, however, are represented by branches in the Middle East, chiefly in Saudi Arabia.

"The money still stays in the system, but the transfers could cause some dislocation," an American banker observed.

A "gradual withdrawal of deposits" was agreed, according to Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad.

But just the talk of withdrawals Thursday hit both the dollar and the London Stock Exchange.

Additional factors in the slide of the dollar were the rise in American wholesale prices and reports from Washington that American balance of payments figures next year may not be as high as earlier anticipated.

Rumors whirling about Europe of President Nixon's death, immediately denied by Washington, added to the nervousness of the market.

The Arabs in both official and private funds are thought to hold about $10 billion on deposit with Western banks. Much of this is call money which can be transferred almost immediately. Some of it is in three and six month certificates of deposit and some in medium term deposits.

British Trade Gap Biggest

©The New York Times

London — Britain reported her biggest quarterly trade deficit in history Thursday and the London stock exchange absorbed one of its worst declines on record.

Blaming sharp increases in the price of imports, the Treasury said the seasonally adjusted payments deficit in the third quarter totalled $760.8 million, surpassing all previous quarterly deficits.

The Financial Times index, equivalent to the U. S. Dow Jones industrial average, closed down 11.8 points at 328.4, the lowest closing level in more than 32 months.

The selling wave was only partly attributable to the payments deficit. A more alarming factor, brokers said, was a report that Arab states were planning to withdraw their funds from Western banks.

Britain's third-quarter payments deficit would have totaled a massive $1.32 billion but for a surplus of $359.2 million for such "invisible" services as shipping, insurance and tourism.

Unhappy Childhood

Haig Drops 'Devil Theory' Into Tape Puzzle

Washington (AP) — President Nixon's top aide dropped a "devil theory" into the White House tapes mystery Thursday, saying there had been in-house discussions that "some sinister force" may have caused 13 minutes of an 18-minute buzz.

With that, U.S. Dist. Judge John J. Sirica adjourned his tapes hearing until experts come up with a more technical answer for the buzz that wiped out a crucial Watergate conversation taped in the President's office.

The tests, now being conducted, should be finished next week, he said.

Alexander M. Haig Jr., the former four-star general who now is Nixon's right hand man, said "there was no finite explanation" for the discrepancy between the 4½ minutes Rose Mary Woods may have erased accidentally and the 18¼ minutes that actually are gone on the Watergate tape.

"There have been several theories," he said, "Perhaps she was tired and didn't realize how long she was away from the machine, or perhaps she touched the high-speed rewind. If that took 4½ minutes, it might have wiped out 18."

Miss Woods, Nixon's personal secretary, has testified she may accidentally have pushed a tape machine record button on Oct. 1 when she stopped transcribing a June 20, 1972 tape to answer her telephone. She said her conversation lasted no more than from four to five minutes.

There are two distinct overriding tones on the tape — loud for five minutes, soft for the other 13.

Asked whether had been any discussions that someone other than Miss Woods might have erased the tape, Haig replied:

"Yes, there have been discussions of what I have referred to as 'devil theories'. Specifically, the night we returned from Memphis Nov. 20 . . . I met with the President's counsels and they were very concerned that evening because the tests they made that day convinced them at that time that the machine used by Miss Woods could not have made the tones. . .

"That therefore suggested that some sort of outside energy force had been applied to the tape. I refer to that as the devil theory today."

Haig said the existence of two tones was "a source of great distress" and the thinking was that one was caused by Miss Woods "and then, perhaps, some sinister source had come in and applied the other energy source and taken care of the information on that tape."

Asked by the judge whether anyone had suggested what that force might be, Haig said, "No, your honor."

He said checks were made to determine who had access to the tape and it was determined there was no one but Miss Woods, presidential aide Stephen Bull, the Secret Service and the President himself.

After court, Haig strongly indicated he believed Miss Woods was the cause of the 18-minute gap.

"I've known some women that think they talked for five minutes and have talked for an hour," he told reporters. "I've always thought that it was Miss Woods, but not in a sinister way. Accidentally."

Energy Costs Explode; Wholesale Prices Soar 19%

Washington (AP) — A record monthly increase in fuel costs drove wholesale prices up sharply in November despite a decline in farm product prices, the government said Thursday.

The explosion in fuel prices reflected the first big inflationary impact of the Arab oil cutoff and put into numbers what consumers know already: energy prices have gone up and will continue to rise.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said that over-all energy prices soared by a record 19.3 per cent, with costs of refined petroleum products rising at an unprecedented 34.7 per cent.

The Wholesale Price Index, a barometer of the types of consumer price increases that are to come in the months ahead, rose 1.8 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The one bright picture for consumers was in the food price area.

Prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds declined 1.5 per cent after seasonal adjustment. It was the third straight monthly drop in this index. Wholesale prices of consumer finished food fell a seasonally adjusted six-tenths of one per cent.

The bureau said 70 per cent of the rise in wholesale prices of industrial commodities was caused by higher fuel costs.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said much of the fuels increase was unavoidable and possibly desirable.

"It is clear that a rise in fuel prices is inevitable and necessary to bring forth additional supplies and allocate the supplies that are available," he said in a statement.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the report "indicates that the administration's anti-inflation program has collapsed. It is a complete, unadulterated, 100 per cent bust."

He questioned how refined petroleum products could go up 34.7 per cent in one month when he said only legitimate costs to producers could be passed on.

Stein said the increase resulted from the petroleum shortage, increased prices of imported oil and increases in the prices of some domestic crude oil exempt from price controls.

As a result of the fuel price increase, wholesale industrial commodity prices rose 3.2 per cent, the steepest one-month increase on records. Records on price movements go back to 1947.

Wholesale prices of coal were up 6.6 per cent; electricity 1.1 per cent, and crude oil, 4.5 per cent. The price of gas fuels dropped by two-tenths of one per cent.

The bureau said it gathered the petroleum prices from spot markets which represent a declining portion of domestic oil transactions. Stein claimed this meant the prices were overstated.

Among industrial commodities, prices of iron and steel scrap, cotton and manmade fiber, apparel, plywood, paper and machinery and equipment were up sharply.

At the farm, there were lower prices for cattle, raw cotton, live poultry, oilseeds, and grains by prices of milk, fresh fruits and eggs were up.

Nixon Appoints Walter J. Stoessel U.S. Ambassador To Soviet Union

Washington (AP) — President Nixon announced nine major diplomatic nominations Thursday, including that of Walter J. Stoessel Jr. to the long-vacant post of ambassador to the Soviet Union.

At the same time, Nixon announced he had accepted "with deep personal regret" the resignation of Joseph J. Sisco as assistant secretary of state for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs. Sisco, a major figure in the search for a Middle East peace, will remain on the job until he assumes the presidency of Hamilton College in upstate New York next spring.

The President also announced he is nominating William J. Casey, now undersecretary of state for economic affairs, to be president of the Export-Import bank.

In addition to Stoessel, the nominees for diplomatic positions are:

— Arthur A. Hartman to be assistant secretary for European affairs, succeeding Stoessel.

— William B. Buffum to be assistant secretary for international organization affairs, replacing David H. Popper who is being nominated as ambassador to Chile.

— Donald B. Easum to be assistant secretary for African affairs, succeeding David D. Newsom, whose nomination to be ambassador to Indonesia also was announced.

— Thomas O. Enders to be assistant secretary for economic and business affairs, replacing Willis C. Armstrong who is resigning and returning to private life.

—Robert J. McCloskey to be ambassador-at-large and, as such, to take charge of State Department press operations, public affairs and congressional relations.

— Helmut Sonnenfeldt to be the department's counselor succeeding Richard F. Pedersen who now is ambassador to Hungary. Sonnenfeldt's earlier nomination to be undersecretary of the Treasury is being withdrawn.

U. S. Currency In Circulation At Record High

New York (AP) — The nation's currency in circulation-bills and coins-soared to a record high of $70.98 billion for the week ended Dec. 5, reflecting increased consumer spending because of the holiday season.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank said in its regular Thursday report on the nation's banking situation that currency in circulation for the previous week was $70.66 billion. Normally currency in circulation rises in the last two weeks of the year because of heavy holiday buying.

Veterans Pension Bill Signed

Washington (AP) — President Nixon Thursday signed a bill to give some two million veterans and their survivors a 10 per cent cost-of-living increase in their monthly pensions, starting Jan. 1.

However, the increase for many will basically restore cuts made earlier in their pensions because of Social Security increases early this year. Other income determines the amount of the pensions.

The President coupled the signing with an appeal to Congress to act on a full pension reform bill by early in its next session, so that there will be automatic cost-of-living boosts in pensions payments and so that the entire framework of the program can be restructured.

The cost-of-living increase affects the veterans pension program and the dependents' indemnity and compensation program, which covers an estimated 69,000 parents of veterans who died as a result of service-connected disabilities.

It also provides a 5 per cent increase in the pension rates for 321,000 children of deceased war-time veterans.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

A startled Senate investigating committee this week looked on as a representative of Howard Hughes' enterprises opened a bag and dumped $100,000 in $100 bills onto the table. They were exactly thoe same $100 bills that had been funneled by the Hughes organization into the campaign of President Richard Nixon about three ago.

The Senate's Watergate Investigating Committee has been trying to get the money for some time now. But what can now be proven by the presence of the bills is a little difficult for us to understand. Money may sometimes talk but we doubt these bills will literally be saying much about where they have been and what purpose they have served.

One of the fascinating things about the $100,000 is that it has simply sat around in various places and never, supposedly, been used by anyone. That must be a classic example of what they mean when they talk about having money to burn.

President Nixon's friend, Bebe Rebozo, apparently kept the money in a private safe for nearly three years, finally returning the same bills to Hughes. Now Hughes has since held on to the money, not just the same amount but exactly the same bills.

Maybe the idea is to show that nobody has really used the money for anything, that it has just sat around gathering dust. It has not been in the company of people who customarily would allow money to do this, however, which further heightens one's skepticism.

But maybe it is all just a living example of how the other half lives, or how a small percentage of the population lives. The average guy struggling along on a weekly salary finds such stories as these almost unbelievable.

U. S. labor leaders are now at work seeking to improve conditions for what is expected to be an upsurge in the ranks of the unemployed. Better workman's compensation will be one of the top priority items, along with job training and, probably, job creation suggestions.

The working men and women, maintain the leaders, should not have to shoulder all the hardship of the energy crisis. The issue is a philosophical one which we have already settled in this nation but remains in controversy as to its degrees.

Most of us will be helping one way or another to meet that energy crisis through some kind of sacrifice or inconvenience. But the people who will be paying the most for the shortage are those who have lost and those who will lose their jobs.

The labor leaders are correct, in our opinion, in recognizing in the matter of unemployment a basic inequity of the shortage situation. But will the American people see it this way?

Will the average citizen be willing to share what he has, in effect, with those who find themselves completely out in the cold economically? There is no question we will all share in this to some extent because there is already an unemployment compensation program.

But is it now to be extended and improved? This is just another in a long list of matters that will be coming to the attention of the nation as the energy situation settles into whatever its final form will be.

The domino theory will be at work in this situation just as it is in most matters of national affairs. The free enterprise system is one that lives with a constant cause and effect action unless or until the government steps in to artificially change things.

Electronic Snoop Checks On Execs

Big Brother is bearing down on business executives with an electronic whatsis that measures, beyond the shadow of an alibi, whether they're really earning their five-digit paychecks. And the executive suite may never be the same again.

If the thing works the way it's supposed to it could kill forever the three-martini lunch . . . the daily battle with the paper blizzard . . . and even those romps around the desk in pursuit of an understanding heart.

What this is, according to the folks who've used it, is a computerized machine you plug into your office wall. That activates a lot of nosy questions scientifically designed to test your efficiency. And you'd be surprised how many executives flunk out.

It was invented in Sweden by Hans Hindersson, a businessman looking for ways to cut the soaring cost of efficiency experts. He says it gives a "95 per cent accurate" picture of how well an executive spends his time.

More than 300 European companies have used it so far, and now a Minnesota think tank is going to market it in this country under the name, Data-Chron. Companies that hire on get a special time-motion questionnaire that's tailor-made for their operations.

Here's how it goes: At random intervals, usually about 30 times a day, the machine gives out a beep and flashes a light. This is the executive's cue to punch a computer card or file a tape report, describing in minute detail what he's working on at the moment.

Trouble is that he never knows when he's going to be beeped, which might tend to bring on a certain amount of jumpiness at first. But desk workers seem to think it beats having an efficiency expert hanging over their shoulders. And after several weeks it gets to be no more annoying than a nagging wife.

Which isn't a bad analogy, because Data-Chron wants a constant report on what each man is doing . . . who told him to do it . . . whether he's reading, writing, dictating or telephoning . . . what the object of the project is, etc., etc.

When it's all over, his answers are gobbled up by the computer, which sorts them and spits out a report to a consultant, who looks it over and passes the final grade along to the executive.

Several concerns in Sweden, for instance, discovered their executives were so bogged down on daily tricky-track they didn't have time to tackle long-range planning. Companies who hired men to be leaders found most of them were leading only half the time — and wasting the other half on jobs subordinates could have handled.

What happens next is up to the big boss. Some foreign company chiefs assume the inefficient executive will get the message and set up different working patterns on his own. Others outline a new program for him to follow.

There's not much chance American firms will be so easygoing. A recent study (not connected with Data-Chron) showed that an executive in the $50,000 bracket who wastes one hour a day, every day, costs his employer $6,250 a year. If he operates at half his efficiency all year long, his boss is out $25,000.

What makes this electronic snooper so valuable, says one boss who tested his staff on it, is that cheating, while possible, is not a problem. Mostly because a man would have to lie about his office activites some 30 times a day over a period of several weeks. And it's hard to fake anything that long.

All Chiefs, No Indians

A British fuel expert operating out of NewYork has concluded that the trouble with the U.S. is that it has too many chiefs and too few Indians. Seems as though the Englishman put an ad in the paper for someone with knowledge of boilers and the efficient use of fuels.

With the replies, he said, "we could put a man on the moon" but do nothing about efficient use of energy. The American infatuation with college degrees, he said, was at least partially to blame for the way the United States wastes energy and fuel.

There are not the technical schools needed, he said, to train people in this country in such things as efficient use of energy and the maintaining of energy systems. Our feeling would be to agree with a lot the Britisher has to say.

How many commercial structures in this nation have a heating and cooling system that really works? Not even larger homes will heat and cool with uniformity and without substantial waste.

In large commercial buildings, the office space at one end may be 80 degrees while it is barely 70 at the other end of the hall. Such places as public buildings, schools and churches know how difficult it is to find an individual who knows anything about a heating and cooling system.

There is some feeling that too many of us have gotten the same way in much of our personal affairs. We have great hospitals and doctors but fewer and fewer people can afford their services.

A man can still become a millionaire in this country in relatively short time but his family life might be a shambles. A corporate president may be eloquent before his board of directors but can't carry on a conversation with his young son.

The nation is now in the middle of its biggest retailing period of the year but the stock market has fallen to its lowest point in the last three years. Sometimes it seems we are too smart for our own good.

Hotter, Deeper Water

Today the United States has a vice president for the first time in some eight weeks and President Nixon suddenly finds himself in even more trouble than he has been in up until now.

With a Republican now next in line of succession to the presidency, many GOP officeholders up for re-election may disavow Nixon because of his scandal-ridden administration and the cloud of suspicion hanging over his personal financial affairs.

This tactic of making the President the scapegoat (which is something he should be thoroughly familiar with, as he has used scapegoats before) could bring additional pressure on him to resign and could undermine his strength in Congress at a time when impeachment proceedings are pending.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, a former chairman of the Republican National Committee, is not one of those officeholders who are thinking about deserting Nixon on the basis he is a political liability.

Dole thinks, instead, that in the absence of any proof of Nixon's guilt in any of the various affairs, party members up for re-election should stand by him and manfully take it on the chin if the electorate is really that mad about Watergate and the rest of it. Dole's thinking appeals to us.

In the first place, it makes sense for the party's sake. GOP officeholders who jump ship before all the facts are in might be discredited in the eyes of Republican voters.

More important is the impact the tactic of scapegoating will make on the impeachment process, if there is to be one. The American people would rather not have a president impeached and convicted. If that is what is to happen, however, people would rather have an impeachment result from a clear-cut determination that the President is guilty of some crime or has so conducted himself that he is unfit to serve. They don't want to see him hounded into resignation or impeached because of the fear of political fall-out.

MARQUIS CHILDS

The Flying Command Post Lag

WASHINGTON — Although the House Appropriations Committee has cut nearly $3 billion from the defense budget of close to $75 billion, many strange and wonderful curiosities that escape most eyes are still more or less intact. They are part of Dr. Strangelove's world of nuclear holocaust.

Take an item of $548 million for the National Airborne Command Post. Only a part of this is in the current budget and the Appropriations Committee has pared it a bit. To the distress of the triple domes who do the computer work for the Air Force it may be spread out over three or four years. And that, they say, means a period of danger when the commander-in-chief may be unable to direct the nuclear response.

The logic of the airborne command post is as follows: While the missiles rain down and millions die in the ruined cities a command plane flying at 35,000 feet directs the response through a battle staff with a highly complex communications system.

Commander-in-chief Nixon may or may not be on board the command post. It will depend on where he was when the word first came that missiles in the Soviet Union had been sent off. He might well be on his way to San Clemente and he would in that event, through the communications system on Air Force I, give instructions to the battle staff. The President and the President alone can by an elaborate coding system release America's nuclear arsenal.

Once the release has been given the battle staff will determine the response. They may decide it is unnecessary to wipe out all the enemy's cities. They may even find that the missile or missiles coming over were discharged accidentally.

An airborne command post was activated in the early '60s. One is operated out of the Strategic Air Command near Omaha, the other near Washington. On the SAC station one of seven converted 707s is constantly in the air.

There are, in a sense, backup posts — two land-based command stations, one in the Pentagon and one at Ft. Richey. The Pentagon is judged "soft" and even the post at Ft. Richey, dug into the Catoctin Mountains, could be knocked out by a direct hit. Therefore, the airborne post is essential to accumulate in a place of "survivability" all information and to relay to the surviving forces battle orders.

The Department of Defense has found that the converted 707s are no longer adequate. The need is for 747s that will take many more modes of communication that can't be stuffed into a 707. This includes satellite communication and possibly an outsize computer, although the computer, not yet authorized by Congressional committees, would mean probably an additional $10 million.

Then the battle staff must be enlarged to man the new and infinitely more complex system. You can readily see how all this conglomeration of men and machines could not be packed into a place smaller than the 747, which is also faster and with longer flying time. You can readily see, too, that if the President happened to be in Washington and were whisked by helicopter from the south lawn of the White House to Andrews Air Force Base a larger plane is essential to give him a suitable command seat.

All this adds up to seven 747s with the development of new communications equipment, a giant new hangar at Andrews and training of additional battle staff: total $585 million.

In the sanity of a past long vanished this must sound like the wildest kind of science-fiction. To think that, while well-nigh universal ruin and death rain down, the battle staff high above it all play those consoles that will mean the death of millions or hundreds of millions on the other side of the earth.

No, it is not science-fiction but the plight to which this tragic civilization has been brought. The inquiring reporter is told that the Russians have made great advances in this field. And they know — they know, how familiar that they are — how far the Americans lag behind. It is in the news from day to day, nuclear weapons here, nuclear weapons there. But can this vision of a nuclear future be made to seem anything but madness?

University And Union

Unionization of college faculties, which has been "just around the corner" for the past couple of years, appears still to be riding a wave of confusion more than one of acceptance.

Many observers have been predicting that it will be a fact of life on most college and university campuses within a decade. And administrators have often cited collective bargaining as their biggest concern nationwide.

In a recent special report, The Chronicle of Higher Education noted that negotiated contracts are in force at 156 colleges and universities in the country, compared with only nine a mere five years ago.

Writing for The Chronicle, Philips W. Semas predicts that collective bargaining is about to become higher education's "issue of the decade."

Yet the same Chronicle edition had front-page stories that told of four private college faculties which had rejected unionization.

And another front-page article summarized a contract negotiated by the American Federation of Teachers at the University of Hawaii which would permit the administration to appoint new professors to renewable five-year contracts rather than tenured positions.

The AFT membership had not voted on that contract yet, and rival organizations were criticizing it. Indeed, the contract would seem to head in a direction opposite of what most faculty unions would want to protect.

Back on the inside pages, The Chronicle's special report carried some discussion of what might be the legitimate role of faculty senates, the traditional repository of faculty power, and faculty unions.

Two other articles carried suggestions for administrators and faculty members on how to go about negotiating. And on the last page, the weekly guest-written "point of view" argued that bargaining need not destroy the traditional participatory nature of college and university governance.

Instead, suggested the author, bargaining can become "a means of substituting democratic for authoritarian decsion-making structures" on the campus.

Donald E. Walters, a deputy director of the Massachusetts State College System, also suggested a third group — students — should be included in the bargaining process, not as a party to employer-employee contractual negotiations but as a participant in the forum where issues vital to student welfare are settled.

Throughout the articles, several questions seemed to reappear. What issues should be included in the bargaining process? How do faculty senates and faculty unions mesh in the campus governing process? Does collective bargaining necessarily impose adversarial relationships on the atmosphere? Will negotiated contracts cripple the institutional ability to innovate?

The answer to one of those questions, on the adversary relationship, often appears to be "yes." And yet, there seems to be little reason that the sides must become adversaries locked in conflict.

Walters provided a bit of insight into the issue when he suggested in The Chronicle that "the bargaining process may be adversarial, but the parties need not be adversaries."

Although that may sound like doubletalk, I think it's not.

Public school bargainers, at least in the Lincoln School District, have proved over the years that they need not approach the bargaining table as would industrial unions and commercial giants.

In fact, some effort has been made at those tables to ensure that the process eschews hard-line conflict, rather than invites it.

That doesn't mean they don't disagree — of course they do — but they neither approach the table nor retire from it believing they are dealing with an enemy whose mission is their ruination.

There is another issue which The Chronicle didn't mention but which faculties in states like Nebraska, and perhaps all states, would have to face.

If the University of Nebraska faculty, as an example, organized to bargain economic issues, who should it bargain with?

If it sought to increase salaries and did so by bargaining with Board of Regents representatives, what assurance would the faculty have that the board could successfully carry a bargained position to the Legislature?

The board might simply refer the faculty union to the Legislature, or the governor, or both, in the beginning. That would put the discussion into the arena with the budgetary power from the start. And effectively insulate the board and its staff from the inconvenience associated with the bargaining process.

The faculty might turn to the board to bargain issues of governance, since regental power is established in that sphere.

But if economic issues were discussed off the campus, the faculty might decide to leave academic ones to the more traditional faculty senate forum, perhaps after enough supercharging to make the senate a more powerful voice in campus affairs.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

For Cause, Not Cost

LONDON — The hottest theater ticket in London these days is to "Saturday, Sunday, Monday," the Old Vic production starring an aging Sir Laurence Olivier, about a family that nearly comes apart because its members took each other's love for granted.

That is what has been happening in the family of nations that make up the western alliance. Until the Mideast war shattered some shibboleths, Americans thought Europeans would "go along" on major east-west confrontations, and Europeans took for granted the permanent preserve of a major American armed force on the continent to hold off the Soviets.

Last week, the Defense Department sent a signal to Western Europe, hinting that some of our bases there would be closed. With 310,000 men committed to NATO, and a quarter of a million dependents along, this sort of signaling and fencing might well be reinforced with some hard looks at the reasons why the United States has troops in Europe in the first place.

1. The tripwire. This fairly discredited theory holds that if enough Americans are killed in a Soviet attack on Europe, we will be in the conflict without delay, and the knowledge of that automatic United States involvement would deter the Russians. On the basis of that argument, we might as well bring the troops back and leave the dependents there.

2. Sphere of influence. America's national interest is served, we are told, with Europe under our sphere of influence, which is assured by the presence of our troops; without that stiffening presence, the fearful Europeans might soon become Soviet vassals.

Certainly Europe is influenced by a display of power: the Arab oil embargo proved that. But with our policy rigidly committed to a land army along the Iron Curtain, there is no need for European nations to woo us. We have given away our leverage and are taken for granted.

And since when has it been our foreign policy to establish influence in any area with the peacetime presence of armies?

3. Mutual and balanced force reduction. This has a logical ring: instead of pulling out by ourselves, and getting nothing for it from the Soviets in return, why don't we put off "unilateral" reduction until we see how the talks with the Russians go?

Answer: Any agreement we ultimately make with the Soviets on the pace of reduction locks us in; we could not pull out more rapidly, and so we would lose what little leverage we have with our allies — at least now nobody disputes our NATO treaty right to decide for ourselves what our military contribution should be.

Another answer: It has taken 18 months to get the mutual reduction talks started; in about two years, if all goes well, we may get a reduction of 10 or 15 per cent. Big deal.

4. Flexible response. That's military jargon for not having to reply to a conventional attack with a nuclear counterattack. The idea is to field an army strong enough to force the Soviets to spend at least a week taking over Europe, giving Henry Kissinger time to fly to Brezhnev's Dacha and work everything out on the basis of the cease-fire lines in the Franco-Prussian War.

It makes good sense to have an army in western Europe that would make the Soviets think twice before moving in. But Europeans do not want an all-European army because they are afraid to see Germans with guns in their hands again.

Good reason for them, but let's not befog that issue with "flexible response" rhetoric: most military strategists say that United States troops in Europe are stationed in South Germany and would not be able to help stop an attack across the North German plain to Bonn, Brussels, Amsterdam and Paris.

Here in London, the men of many nationalities who make up the independent International Institute for Strategic Studies are realistically preparing papers on "Defense With Fewer Men" — not exactly Charlie Wilson's classic "More Bang for the Buck," but close enough. They recognize the likelihood of America's acting in its national interest.

America's national interest is to begin reducing our military commitment to NATO now. The way we do it is important: Not in a fit of pique, but in close "consultation" with allies; not all at once, but on a timetable that would let allies take up the slack. We should take this step for the big reason — to induce Europe's self-defense — not for any demeaning reason. We recently passed a law, the Jackson-Nunn Amendment, that automatically reduces our troop level when a host country does not offset the money we spend.

"That's backing out the cheap way," one of the NATO ambassadors told me in Brussels. "The United States is a superpower. You should act with dignity. If you are going to reduce your forces, do it for a strategic reason, not because you can't afford it."

Rites Held For Noted Writer Betty Knicely

Sidney (AP) — Funeral services were held Thursday for Betty Knicely, a well-known local writer and businesswoman. She was 53.

She died Monday in Cheyenne, Wyo., where she had been hospitalized four weeks and had undergone major surgery.

She was well-known in western Nebraska for her articles that appeared in several newspapers and magazines, including a weekly column in the Sidney Telegraph.

She was a graduate of the University of Nebraska school of journalism.

For several years she was on the staff of the Sidney Telegraph.

She also was proprietress of The Book Keepers book store in Sidney.

In 1971 she received the first place award for feature column writing in competitions sponsored by the National Federation of Press Women. The award was for an article entitled "An Empty Nest," written when the last of her four children entered college.

Survivors include her husbend Jack, a Sidney attorney; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klingel of Omaha; two sons, James J., who is a legal clerk for U.S. Supereme Court Justice Harry Blackmun and John, a student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln; two daughters, Mrs. Harold Teague and Mrs. John Marker, both of Lincoln; one brother and one sister.

Funds OKd For Flood Clean-Up

Some $40,000 in federal funds is being made available to rural residents of 3 Nebraska counties to help clean up flood damage problems according to Stanley Dodson, chairman of the State Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service Committee (ASCS).

The three counties are Jefferson, Saline and Thayer. The program will provide matching funds for use in repairing dams, ponds and terraces damaged by the floods. Funds can also be used to remove debris from fields and to relevel land or grade and shape flood damaged fields.

The state committee will decide how much of the cost the farmer must pay at its next meeting scheduled for next week.

Farmers may apply to their local county ASCS office if they desire to participate in the program.

Application by the counties for the funds was based on surveys of the county conducted by the local ASCS county committee, approval of the application by the state committee and finally approval of the application by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

International Fair Group Tabs Brandt

Nebraska State Fair Manager Henry F. Brandt was elected president Thursday of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions in convention at Las Vegas.

A native of Beatrice, Brandt has been manager of the Nebraska State Fair since 1965. The fair attracted more than half a million visitors this fall when it expanded from seven to 10 days.

The IAFE, an organization of more than 300 fair and expositions in North America, was founded by the late Robert W. Furnas, once governor of Nebraska. It was then the American Fat Stock and Dairy Show.

Consumer Unit's Standards Awaited

The Consumer Product Safety Act of 1972 gives a five-member national commission "unprecedented authority" to establish safety standards, about 80 Lincoln area businessmen were told Thursday.

Tom Carroll, executive-secretary of the Nebraska Safety Council, said the standards and rules imposed by the commission, whose members are appointed by the President, could have a "devastating impact" on all operations relating to consumer products.

The commission can ban hazardous products from the market place, Carroll said, and it can order a manufacturer, distributor or retailer to repair, place or refund the cost of a product that presents a "substantial hazard."

The act covers "virtually all consumer products that may be available to the buying public," Carroll said.

Carroll told the businessmen, however, that the commission's priorities may be determined by the "extent to which industry takes voluntary action."

"Many decisions will have to await commission action, interagency cooperation and perhaps court action before the exact dimensions of the new commission's vast authority can be precisely defined," Carroll said.

Carroll quoted a commission member who spoke recently in Chicago who told businessmen, "Don't rely solely on a lawyer; apply ethical and moral judgement" in working with the new commission.

The Thursday meeting in Lincoln was the eighth in a series of nine dealing mainly with changes in standards issued under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) of 1970.

As well as undating businessmen around the state on OSHA, the Nebraska Safety Council is gathering opinions from businessmen and representatives of industry to determine if there is a consensus on changes that should be made in the act.

State Health Planning Lauded

Nebraska is "doing quite well in comparison with other states" in the area of comprehensive planning to meet health manpower needs, a federal official said Thursday.

Frank Monroe, assistant director of the Division of Manpower Intelligence in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said in an interview that he finds "readiness to undertake" planning to meet health manpower needs in Nebraska.

Monroe was scheduled to speak to over 110 physicians, nurses and others employed in health care fields at a two-day health manpower planning workshop at the Radisson-Cornhusker Hotel.

"Health manpower is a very expensive thing to produce, especially as you move up the levels of the profession," Monroe said.

Monroe said another reason planning is needed is because it takes years, sometimes as long as 10 to 15 years, to produce professionals in some health care areas.

To produce health care manpower in the absence of a "good plan," Monroe said, "could very well involve producing more professionals in some areas than might be needed."

Early this year HEW began making a national inventory of what was already taking place in planning on the state and local levels, Monroe said.

In addition, he said, over 2,400 written documents on health care planning are being classified and indexed so they can be made available on a nationwide basis.

The goal of the national effort, Monroe said, is to bring manpower planning on the state and local levels to the stage that information on health manpower planning can be accumulated across states and regions so a national planning effort can be organized.

State Prison's 344 Dairy Cows Are To Be Sold

The State Prison's dairy herd will be sold at auction next Monday and Tuesday.

Charles Neal, state purchasing agent, said up for sale will be 344 head plus all processing and milking equipment owned by the Penal Complex.

The dairy herd includes registered Holsteins which prison officials said have high production records.

The decision to close out the long-time dairy operation was made for two reasons, according to Warden Charles Wolff.

He said dairy work is no longer considered valid training for inmates because of declining job possibilities in that area and also environmental requirements have made the operation financially prohibitive.

450 Acres In Lancaster Co. Rented By State

The State Board of Educational Lands and Funds Thursday awarded leases on four parcels in Lancaster County totaling 450 acres.

Morris Reynolds, executive secretary of the board, said the leases will bring the state an annual total of $5,359 in rent and $8,500 in bonuses. The rent and bonuses will go to the operation of the state's school system.

The leases, Reynolds said, went for the increased rent charges approved by the board earlier this year. The cropland rent was 103% higher than last year's rent and the rent on grassland was up 33%.

Weather Slows Construction Work

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

A labor official said Thursday the recent bad weather has cut construction jobs in Lincoln by half.

Cold weather plus ice and snow "makes it tough," said C.E. Lagoni, Bricklayers Local No. 2 business agent. "It's affecting the whole economic outlook of Lincoln."

Bill Courtney of the State Labor Department employment division said unemployment in construction because of weather is at about 16.9% and "might go up to 20%."

"Every time it snows, there'll be some laid off temporarily," Courtney said, but they usually return to work after it clears. He said construction workers usually file for unemployment immediately when laid off in case bad weather holds.

Unseasonably Warm

Except for Tuesday's storm, contractors have been enjoying unseasonably warm days, compared to last year when winter set in about mid-October and held.

Some of the major building contracts in Lincoln are behind schedule and others have extended completion dates.

Carl Donaldson, project coordinator for the new National Bank of Commerce at 13th & O, said "good old weather is bossin' us around a little bit."

The storm Tuesday "slowed us down" from 50-55 workers to "about a dozen" on the job, Donaldson said. The good weather earlier allowed completion of pouring NBC's north wall and the vault walls and floor.

"We want to get the first floor slab poured" to act as a "lid" for inside winter work, he said.

On Schedule

The new $15 million Federal Building, with completion expected Dec. 1, 1974, is "proceeding according to schedule," said Gene McDonough, area manager for Morrison-Knudsen Co. Inc.

"We were shut down for two days" during the storm this week, he said, when ice and snow posed dangers to laborers. McDonough said, "We expect to work year round" with fuel shortages posing the only possible problem.

Tom Fricke, general manager for the Lincoln Hilton under construction at 9th and O, said the building schedule is in "good shape." He said the hotel might be finished by "the end of June 1974, but it may be before" if contractors get "breaks in the weather."

Jim Beard, vice president of Kingery Construction Co. building the Hilton, said the garage and public areas have been completed. The next step is the tower portion containing guest rooms. Beard, too, said meeting the schedule is "dependent upon winter weather."

'10 Weeks Behind'

In University of Nebraska-Lincoln construction projects, the NU Fieldhouse at the State Fairgrounds is "close to 10 weeks behind schedule," according to NU construction engineer Richard A. Snyder.

NU "analyzed construction of the Fieldhouse about a week ago," Snyder said, and determined that weather accounted for three to four weeks of the 10-week setback. The remainder was due to equipment failures.

The new $1.25-million home economics building on the UNL east campus was originally scheduled to be finished last month, Snyder said, but "due to the harsh winter last winter" the date has been moved back to February 1974. The structural shell of the building is up.

The $3.88-million addition to Love Library on the UNL downtown campus had a 69-day time extension tacked on last week, with completion now set Sept. 18, 1974, said Tom W. Trumble, NU construction engineer. "We're pretty close to being on schedule to that."

Del H. Busacker, chief construction engineer for NU said no adjustments for time extensions have been made on the $2.625-million NU Law College on east campus.

Depends On Materials

Although construction is "dragging" somewhat, Busacker said the law school building's completion on time "depends on the availability of materials."

Milk Prices Up Again In Many Lincoln Stores

Milk prices have gone up again in many Lincoln stores, reflecting increased prices from dairy cooperatives up through wholesale distributors, Lincoln store managers said Thursday.

IGA and Hinky Dinky stores raised their milk prices 8 cents a gallon and 4 cents a half-gallon on Monday, a random survey of Lincoln stores showed.

That put whole-milk prices for IGA milk at $1.35 a gallon and 71 cents a half-gallon. The Hinky Dinky manager said only that the store sells many brands at many prices, but all went up the same amount on Monday.

Safeway stores did not raise milk prices. They remain for the Safeway brands, which are all processed in Omaha, $1.24 a gallon and 63 cents a half-gallon.

Milk prices at Lincoln Goodrich stores also remain unchanged at $1.19 a gallon and 61 cents a half-gallon. One store manager said she expects an increase, however, because Goodrich stores in Omaha have hiked milk prices 8 cents a gallon.

The sales manager for Roberts Dairy, a wholesale outfit, said wholesale prices to the stores have gone up due to increased container costs, transportation costs and the price of raw milk from the dairy cooperatives.

He said the 30 cents per hundredweight increase in raw milk prices from cooperatives is a rate set by the federal government.

In Omaha, Goodrich President Dwight Buss said earlier that he believes negative consumer reaction will force milk prices back down.

Lincoln stores managers whose stores have increase milk prices, however, said they've had no comments from purchasers.

NU's Varner: Geographic Pressure Absent

By MILAN WALL
and DON WALTON
Star Staff Writers

University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner says he has been both surprised and pleased by an absence of any geographically based political pressure on his office.

"I can say in total honesty I've had no pressue from Omaha or Lincoln about doing more (for one community or the other) or from outstate," said Varner.

Another story, Pg. 1

"I've been subjected to no pressure and that says a lot about some fair-minded citizens," Varner continued.

"I suspected when I came I would be caught in a tug of war — I suspected some anxiety — but if there is any it's never been brought to me."

When Varner came to the state, he was given the job of putting together a relatively new three-campus university system, created with a state decision to acquire a financially troubled city university in Omaha.

He was to serve as chief administrator of a central System office, overseeing the work of the three campuses, and serving the Board of Regents as its chief executive officer.

In that role, he said, he expected he might get some pressure from regional interests. But neither citizens generally nor the regents in particular have attempted that, he said.

"There's been a remarkable lack of Lincoln vs. Omaha consideration" in the Board of Regents, he said. "It rarely crops up except in awarding architectural contracts."

The board itself rarely enters into inter-campus argumens that demand arbitration, said Varner, because those debates are limited largely to staff discussions.

Federation
O.U. [redacted] YES

"Very little do arguments spill into the regental discussions and generally the board accepts our recommendations," he noted.

Although the university gets a good deal of attention from other political quarters, Varner said he believes attempts at legislative intrusion into the university have diminished in the last two years.

"My first year here was the worst in terms of legislative intrusion," he said. "There were so many bills that were dropped in down there all the time."

But he also said, "We have to recognize the facts of life in this state.

"The university is prominent, it takes a sizable chunk of the tax dollar, it affects people in the major industry (agriculture) in major ways.

"People have a healthy interest in the university," he said. "Their elected leaders have to reflect that.

"I'd rather have it this way than if they were disinterested.

"I've taken a policy position that we don't have any secrets," he said. "I don't get uptight with their concern."

Services For Teen Parents

When A Child Has A Child

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

A school-age mother is a "child having a child . . . She is put in the roles of adult and parent," roles she's not prepared for, said Donna Cates, chief public health nurse of the Maternal Infant Care Program in Omaha.

She was one of seven professionals who presented their recommendations on an "ideal program for young parents" at the final day of the Nebraska Conference on the Special Needs of School-Age Parents, coordinated by Sen. Shirley Marsh.

The seven represented the areas of education, social, mental health, medical and preventive services.

> Adolescent pregnancies are "high risk pregnancies . . . failure situations."

Pointing out that adolescent pregnancies are "high risk pregnancies . . . failure situations," Ms. Cates recommended such medical services as pregnancy counseling, making adequate resources available, finding new ways of dealing with fears, fantasies and expectations, and providing adequate medical, dental care and continued follow-up programs offering not only continuation of services but also birth control information.

Dr. Joseph Rizzo, clinical psychologist at the Immanuel Mental Health Center in Omaha, said, "This is a hell of a time for the adolescent . . . We must help them through their frustrations."

He said acceptance of them as individuals "is the most difficult yet most necessary step," but he cautioned those contemplating any form of comprehensive service for young parents to be certain their intentions are sincere.

Dr. Rizzo also recommended coordinating existing mental health and social services, plus the institution of family groups for adolescents and their parents and for the adolescent parents, mothers and fathers alike.

Adolescent in-patient and adolescent day care programs, such as those currently being introduced at the Omaha facility, also are needed, he said.

> "Infant day care is one of the most important needs . . ."

Richard Schrader, chief of the division of Social Services, Department of Public Welfare, agreed, "that infant day care is one of the most important needs in planning for the care of the child." He said that of the types of day care facilities needed in the state, the greatest demand exists for infant care.

"Schools are the anchor agency" in getting such comprehensive programs initiated, according to Judy Ratzlaff, administrative consultant in home economics education for the State Department of Education.

She and Dr. Gail Sims, also of the State Department of Education, said that the young persons should have alternatives available in deciding whether to continue their regular educational programs or pursue some other form of educational format.

According to state law, all persons between the ages of five and 21 have the right to an education, and that does not exclude pregnant women, Sims said.

> "We must work on changing some of the institutions that are very powerful in our culture."

However, he pointed out that alternatives to regular school programs, such as special schools or courses, may continue the "medieval pattern" of excluding pregnant teenagers from their classrooms. "Local prejudices keep pregnant girls out of the public schools," he said.

"It's time for schools to look beyond their traditional role," Ms. Ratzlaff said proposing three alternatives which could be made available to school-age parents: using regular services currently available; focusing, within the school system, on adult education or homebound programs; or specialized programs designed specifically for parents.

Kathleen Tucker, Grand Island social services represntative for the State Department of Public Welfare, said that social service agencies could be used as referral groups contributing to a comprehensive program. Social services can help the young persons make the maximum use of their own resources, family resources and community resources, she said.

"We have programmed young people for failure," said David Bones, director of information and education for Planned Parenthood in Omaha.

> "It's time for schools to look beyond their traditional role."

He said the community not only has the responsibility to look after these needs of adolsecent parents but to mend the inaccuracies and inadequacies in instructing young people.

"The ideas and images one has about oneself" must be changed. So must inadequate roles and the level of information disseminated to young persons, he said.

"We must work on changing some of the institutions that are very powerful in our culture," he said, singling out the church which "tells us we can't be human" but that having children is a religious demand of couples.

"It is important for the church to get into the field of sexuality," Bones said.

He said changes also must take place in the institutions of education and state legislatures which tell young people the only time before you are 16 we will care for you (medically) is after you get VD."

CYNTHIA JOHNSON

GRACIA SIEB

The second production of the current University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts season will be William Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors," which will be held at Howell Theatre at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and Monday through Saturday, Dec. 10-15.

Unlike the 1939 UNL presentation of "Comedy of Errors," which was done in the classical style with Shakespearean costumes and dialogue, the 1973 version is described by David H. Bell — director and choreographer — as being modern, fast-moving and filled with music and dancing.

The play concerns two sets of identical twins who cause confusion wherever they go because of mistaken identities and misinterpreted actions.

For example, one of the twins arrives in the city where his brother, whom he has not seen for many years, is living. He finds himself mistaken for his brother, claimed by his brother's wife and besieged by his brother's creditors.

Although he did not change the play itself, Bell noted that he has changed the basic concept of the play through various techniques.

A predominant and highly noticeable characteristic of the play, is the totally black and white setting and the black and white costumes of the secondary characters.

According to Bell, the secondary characters or "cold characters" wear black and white because they do not take part in the action but instead manipulate the major characters who act out the play.

"Black and white also represents the sad or tragic aspect of comedy," he said. "A situation may be funny to people who are watching but not to those caught up in the situation."

Music for Bell's lyrics was scored by Lis Lewis and Jerry Lewis is lighting designer. Nancy Myers designed the sets and costumes were designed by Joy Butler.

Person's interested in making reservations may do so at the Theatre box office, which is located in room 105 of the Temple Building, or by calling 472-2073. Box office hours are from 1 to 5 p.m. on weekdays.

"Spoon River Anthology"

Currently being presented at the Nebraska Wesleyan University Enid Miller Theatre is the play "Spoon River Anthology" written by Charles Aidman and based on a poem by Edgar Lee Masters.

Curtain time for the production is 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

According to Director Henry Blanke Jr., the play is "a collage of character." The cast consists of 35 actors, each playing at least two different characters.

Each of the characters who are come-to-life cemetary inhabitants, shares his life experience with the audience.

"Like most cemeteries, the inhabitants range from the very obscure to the famous and infamous of Spoon River," Blake said.

Through the spirits of the cemeteries inhabitants, we come to know the secrets that each carried to the grave," he added. "Some stories are ironic, some are humorous and all are touching."

Reservations for "Spoon River Anthology" may be obtained by calling the Enid Miller Theatre Box Office.

Display at Cengas

A variety of oils, watercolors, batiks, tie-dye and acrylic works by Barb Harms and her daughter, Kelly Harms, and Earl Harmon currently are being displayed in the lobby of the Cengas building.

Sponsored by the Lincoln Artists' Guild, the exhibit will continue through Jan. 2.

"A King In New York"

The Charles Chaplin Film, "A King in New York," may be viewed at the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery Auditorium at 7 and 9 p.m. Friday and 3, 7 and 9 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets for the last film of the Charles Chaplin series will be available at the door.

Christmas Carol Concert

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln School of Music will present the University Singers, directed by Earl Jenkins, in a traditional Christmas Carol Concert at 4 p.m. Sunday in Kimball Recital Hall.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Margaret Emmons, a senior from Hastings, will serve as accompanist. She will be assisted by Prof. George Ritchie, organ, and Becky Knudsen, a junior from Norfolk, who will play the flute.

The program will open with motets for the Christmas season by Francis Poulenc, Michael Praetorius and Johann Pachelbel. The concert also will feature a Magnificat for women's voices by Ralph Vaughan Williams and "Festival Te Deum by Benjamin Britten.

In addition, the University Singers will perform various familiar and lesser-known Christmas Carols.

A Reminder

KRNU-FM (90.3), operated by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, will broadcast the first performance of the 34th Texaco-Metropolitan Opera season at 1 p.m. Saturday.

The program will feature Rossini's "L'Italiana in Algeri."

William Warfield To Perform

Baritone William Warfield will be guest artist when the Omaha Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Yuri Krasnapolsky, performs at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Omaha Civic Auditorium Music Hall.

West		East
♠ AK7	N	♠ J
♥ AK	W E	♥ Q5
♦ AJ953	S	♦ 10 7642
♣ K72		♣ Q8643

1. Oddly enough, the best play is to let North win the ten of hearts! This assures the contract if the trumps are divided no worse than 4-2. You have ten high-card tricks waiting to be cashed—after you duck the heart.

If you won the heart, the contract would be in jeopardy. Let's suppose you took it and led a diamond, hoping to ruff one later in dummy. The defense would win and play another heart—and if you took this also and played another diamond, they would lead a third round of trumps.

If the trumps proved to be divided 4-2, you could try to run the clubs in an effort to dispose of your last diamond on the fourth round of clubs. But if the first, second or third club got ruffed by the player with the fourth trump, he would cash a diamond to put you down one.

2. After winning the heart you must resist the temptation to go straight for the diamond suit. Four diamond tricks and four tricks in the majors would not be enough, and when you attempted to score the ninth trick by leading a club, the enemy would grab the ace and cash at least three hearts to put you out of business.

Instead of pursuing such a hopeless course, you should win the heart and play a low club at trick two. This play offers a legitimate chance for the contract. If North has the A-x or A-x-x of clubs, he must duck; otherwise, you'd breeze home with nine tricks.

Having "stolen" a club, you now play a diamond—intending to finesse if South follows low. Unless North shows up with all three diamonds at this point, you make the contract.

Grouches Live Longer

By Arthur J. Snider

"Let me grow lovely growing old — so many fine things do." — Karle Wilson Baker.

Growing old graciously is a trait admired in the elderly but, unfortunately, it is no guarantee of longevity.

The people who live the longest are the crotchety, cantakerous types who make demands on those about them.

"It looks as if 'growing old gracefully' is an invention of poets rather than an adequate guide to survival," say Prof. Morton A. Lieberman, University of Chicago psychiatrist.

"Our studes show that those who are aggressive, irritating, narcisissitic (that is, self-preoccupied) are the individuals most likely to survive major life crises intact. They certainly are not the most likable elderly."

The gentle, benign, obliging, courteous kind are the people most likely not to live longest.

Lieberman once asked the staff of an institution for oldsters to predict which individuals would out live the others.. Their predictions were almost 100% wrong.

It was found that the individuals liked by the staff, the patients who were easy to get along with and not trouble-makers, were viewed as being more able to survive crises.

The traditional views on aging, mental health and serenity are of no help in determining survival ability.

"Perceiving one's self as the center of the universe, combined with a pugnacious stance toward the world, even a highly suspicious stance, seems more likely to insure survival," says Lieberman.

Just why this should be so is not known. "It's a difficult thing to answer," he said in an interview. "It's probably not an unanswerable question. We just haven't enough physiological data on the relation of personality to the physical nature of man."

Whether survival is worth the price of being a grouchy oldster is a personal question. Whether one can change these characteristics is unknown.

"But clearly, graciousness in old age is, at least for those interested in survival, not the most successful orientation," the psychiatrist says. Perhaps, he added, one should follow the advice Dylan Thomas gave to his aged and dying father when he said:

"Do not go gentle into that good night.

"Rage, rage against the dying of the light."

As a member of the University's Human Relations Committee, Lieberman, now on leave at the University of Wisconsin, has long been interested in how people die, under what conditions death occurs and what role deaths plays in the psychology of life.

Does nearness to death, for example, present the elderly person with a crisis? Seldom.

"It is the rare case for an individual to have lived into the seventh or eighth decade of life without having come to grips with his own death and developed some personal philosophical system for dealing with it," Liberman reports.

Contrary to belief, most old people are quite willing to discuss at some length their feelings and thoughts about death. In one study of 80 elderly persons, 40 of whom died within a year of discussing this issue with them, only three found such discussion difficult.

"It seems to me the crisis portions have been an invention of the young rather than the old," says the psychiatrist. "It seems likely the death issue is more crucial much earlier in life — perhaps in late middle age."

Voluntary Program Will Help Oldsters

Under the welfare reform plan, welfare recipients will be receiving their benefit checks from the Social Security System after Jan. 1.

However, in addition to the $130 monthly federal standard, a supplementary state payment may be allotted and, in a few cases, a chore services check may be issued from the welfare department to provide funds for those who cannot perform their own household duties.

Thus, the aged, blind and disabled may recieve their benefit payments from three different sources — the Social Security office, the state and the welfare department — creating a very confusing situation.

For that reason, recipients may apply for a representative payee service sponsored by the Social Security System.

"Many of the recipients, especially the aged, are not capable of handling their own money," said J. Earl Trabert, director of the Lancaster County Welfare Department. "For example, they acknowledge the fact that they can't get out and pay their own bills."

Trabert, who has been with the welfare department for 37 years, retired last summer and has been acting as temporary director until the department can find a replacement.

But next year he will assume the duties of a representative payee for those who request his services.

"I have set up a little office with a desk, an adding machine and a real nice TV," he said. "I'll be getting paid peanuts compared to my usual salary, but I consider it something voluntary. And I have to have something to do, something to keep me busy."

What are the duties of a representative payee?

According to the Social Security system policy on the program, benefit payments will be made to the payee for the beneficiary because this method will best serve his interest.

Therefore, it is the payee's job to use the social security benefits in the beneficiary's best interest by keeping well informed of the beneficiary's needs.

Taking into consideration all of the beneficiary's expenses, the payee budgets the monthly income, pays all bills and provides the beneficiary with spending money if necessary.

Also, the payee must report for the beneficiary any events which can affect the Social Security payments, as well as report to the beneficiary what items were paid.

Essentially, the benefit checks should be used to provide for the beneficiary's day-to-day basic needs, including food, shelter and clothing.

"The program in not mandatory," noted Trabert. "It is purely voluntary and it is a nice service for those who need it."

Figures On Sex Are Not Gospel

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I read an article which stated: "Ninety seven per cent of all married men cheat on their wives — and only six per cent of all married women cheat on their husbands."

I told my husband this, and he said he thought those statistics were way off, that it should have been higher for women, and lower for men.

What do you think?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: There is probably no other subject about which so many people lie; so where sex is concerned, I wouldn't accept any figure as gospel.

DEAR ABBY: I am 25, and Ken is 40. We've been happily married for six years and have a daughter 5, and I'm expecting again.

My problem: Ken has three sons, 14, 12, and 9, who have been living with his ex-wife, and these boys are hard to handle. I know because we've had them for vacations.

His ex-wife has had three husbands in the last five years, and now she's living with a minor! Ken says it would be easy for us to get custody of his kids now, but Abby, I don't want them. They like me, and I make them mind, but it's so difficult! The older one has run away twice, and the 12-year-old is on probation for shoplifting.

I don't know what I'll do if I have to raise these boys, Abby. I love my husband and don't want to lose him, but I don't think I can handle those wild kids.

CRACKING UP

DEAR CRACKING: The boys desperately need love and acceptance. Don't reject them. Your Family Service Child Guidance department can counsel you — and them, too. If they make their home with you, give these problem boys a chance to straighten out. Love creates miracles.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that if a man introduces a woman in public as his wife, they are legally married.

If this is true, why is it necessary to obtain a marriage license?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: There is a small germ of truth (and then only under special circumstances) in the above statement. Talk to a lawyer in your state about marriage — common-law and otherwise.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

Libra stands tall for principles even while giving appearance of compromise. Libra is associated with Venus and the number 6. This is the natural seventh sign and is related to partnership, marriage and dealings with the public. Libra is gentle toughness and innate creativity. Libra wins while conceding. Basically, Libra is awareness, a mature kind of realization. Libra pretends in a creative way, is the artist, performer and one who reflects for us the joys, pains and foibles of life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may have to revise plans to fit budget. If you take care of details, the big picture will take care of itself. Avoid asking for too much. If you measure and time moves, you emerge with more than you probably deserve.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get boost from one in authority. Element of timing is in your favor. You seem more capable now of communicating, convincing and putting thoughts into action. Cycle remains high — strive for fresh approach.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make peace with family member. Be diplomatic. Also, it is necessary to be discreet. Keep confidences. Don't cast first stone. One close to you may feel abused. You have some concessions to make, to say nothing of apologies. Be grown up!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money, investments, opportunities provided by friends — these are highlighted. Be selective. Avoid fooling yourself. Eschew wishful thinking. See in light of actuality. Pisces, Virgo persons could play important roles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What appears to be opposition is likely to be a favor in disguise. Prestige rises. Legal decision goes to your advantage. Don't shirk responsibility or challenge. Older individual pulls strings for you. Show appreciation in tangible manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish what you start. Aries, Libra persons are likely to be involved. Reach beyond what appears to be a limit. Spread influence. Advertise, publicize and distribute. Correspondence, communication is more important than might be apparent on surface.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New contact proves fruitful, especially where member of opposite sex is concerned. Leo, Aquarius may be in picture. Check interest rates. Take inventory. Be aware of tax advantages and otherwise. Mystery will be unraveled.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Measure moves. Take time to be sure. Accent is on how others react to your plans, assertions. You don't win by forcing. You gain by explaining, moving back in order to get a more accurate survey. Aquarian is involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You put ideas into motion. Lethargy is replaced by optimism and action. You have chance now to expand. Short journey proves fruitful. Popularity increases. Avoid feeling that one who serves you is not doing job. Be considerate of background limitations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money position should be taken with regard to fine points. Be aware of subtle nuance, hints. Scorpio, Aquarius and Leo individuals could play prominent roles. Young person may want too much, too soon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get pleasant surprise regarding values. What you own increases — your assets could multiply. This does nt occur in flash-in-pan manner. Rather, it is likely to be result of careful planning, perhaps plodding.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This can be a period of adjustment. Strive to understand those who appear to have strange whims. Don't commit yourself. Listen and observe. Taurus, Libra persons seem to be involved here. Display affection.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, spiritual rather than religious in orthodox sense. You will be on more solid footing in 1974 with April indicated as an outstanding month. You attract persons born under Pisces and Virgo. You are somewhat of a perfectionist. You are your own worst critic.

(Learn "The Truth About Astrology." Send birthdate (for our survey) and 75 cents to Omarr Booklet, The Lincoln Star, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y. 10017. You'll open door to fascinating study and self-revelation!)

Home Comfort Hints

WARNING

By: Ivan Gross, Service Manager

Bryant Air Conditioning and Heating Co.

Everybody has been telling you what you should do to conserve energy this winter. There are, however, many DONT'S that one must do to protect his well-being as well as his property. Here is a partial list of safety factors that every home and business owner should follow.

1. Do not close combustion air in equipment rooms from attic and outside.
2. Do not put manual dampers in flue vent pipe.
3. Do not close fireplace damper with fire burning in the fireplace
4. Do not use any gas burning appliances without venting them properly to the outside. This includes stoves, gas logs, space heaters.
5. Do not use a ventless heater in a home for supplementary heat.
6. Do not use electric heaters in the home or business without having the wire checked by an electrician. Make sure your electric heater has "tip-over" protection.
7. Do not use charcoal grills or electric stoves for supplementary heat.
8. Do not install dampers in gas driers. Do not disconnect vents on gas driers.
9. Do not try to adjust the controls on gas or electric appliances unless you are fully qualified.
10. Do not try to adjust gas input to any gas appliance.
11. Do not close attic and crawl space ventilators
12. Do not burn wood in a gas log fireplace
13. Do not store materials around furnace or water heater.

The above list is just a partial list of what should not be done. Your heating plant is a sensitive, balanced piece of equipment. It should be treated as you would treat an expensive watch. Only qualified technicians should be called to adjust or correct any defect.

We want you to be safe this winter . . . so if you are in need of service, Call BRYANT . . . 467-1111 . . . day or night . . . 365 days a year. Bryant offers round the clock service and remember, at Bryant you can use your Bankamericard or Mastercharge.

Doctor Suggests Getting Flu Shots Now

While a check with Lincoln hospitals Thursday revealed about the normal number of late fall influenza patients, a State Health Department official noted that flu outbreaks, if any, shouldn't begin until late December.

Dr. Paul A. Stoesz, director of disease control, said his agency has had no reports yet of flu cases in the state, but added, "This is the time people should be getting shots."

Stoesz said his agency is now setting up a physicians sentinel reporting system, in which six doctors throughout Nebraska will report flu cases weekly until the end of the flu season in late February.

The disease control bureau will also take reports of absenteeism in the Lincoln schools system, manufacturing companies and the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

With the flu season near, Stoesz suggested "high-risk people" — the elderly, diabetics, heart disease patients and others with severe infectious diseases — get flu shots immediately.

"The vaccine still is not 100% effective," Stoesz said.

He also emphasized that a flu shot "does not prevent colds or upper respiratory infections." Influenza is only one of 200 to 300 different viruses, he said, and a flu shot is effective only against the flu.

Stoesz said the health department is suggesting a single flu shot this year for people who were immunized last year, but he advised individuals not previously immunized to follow their doctors' recommendations.

He also noted the Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, Ga., advises one shot this year, the vaccine against the Type A flu strain.

A single shot of divalent, he said, will protect against two Type A strains in a single shot. Protection against the Type B flu strain is up to the individual, Stoesz said, and if desired should be taken in a separate vaccination.

Stoesz said the CDC reported recent detection of an English Type A flu strain in western Canada. "It was brought over from Japan by — believe it or not — a bunch of physicians attending a meeting over there," he said.

But he offered one optimistic note: "With the fuel shortage, people will be exposing themselves less frequently" to the flu owing to less travel; which "should check the wildfire spread" of influenza, as in the 1968-69 season.

Carpenter For Change (If He Can Be Speaker)

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said Thursday that he would be for proposed rule changes that would give the speaker of the Unicameral more power if the Legislature would let him be speaker.

He said his talk of running for speaker may make senators who wish to give the speaker more power a change of heart.

According to legislative rules, it would take a two-thirds vote of the legislature to replace Sen. Richard Proud as speaker before his term ends at the end of 1974.

Carpenter has announced that he will run for the legislature for the 1975 and 1976 sessions.

The proposed changes were made public last week by Sen. Richard Kellman who said he was horrified by the proposed changes that would make the speaker chairman of the Legislative Council executive board and give him the authority to assign bills and senators to committees. Carpenter now heads the Legislative Council executive board.

Many considered the proposed changes an attempt to limit Carpenters's extensive influence in the legislature.

Proud said that Sen. Calvin Carstens of Avoca was the major sponsor of the changes.

Carpenter jokingly questioned whether he had any real influence in the legislature and said that he could work with any rules.

Carpenter said the rules would not curtail his activity, but only make the legislature a greater challenge for him.

Most Grads In Education Found Jobs

Despite a decrease in teaching job vacancies reported to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln placement office, more than 95% of those who registered with the office found jobs, according to Lee DeJonge, director of teacher placement for UN-L Teachers' College.

A drop in vacancies of nearly 1,000 — from 11,940 in 1971-72 to 10,983 in 1972-73 — corresponded with a decrease in Teachers' College graduates last year, DeJonge said.

The biggest drop in vacancies was at the elementary school level, he said. It was down 27.3%. Despite that, he said, 79% of UNL graduates seeking elementary school positions were employed.

Of 863 Teachers' College graduates who registered with the office, 26.9% took jobs in other fields, DeJonge said.

He emphasized that mathematics, sciences, music and adult education are all fields which need more teachers.

And he said some experts predict an upsurge in school age children in the early 1980's, calling for more teachers in all fields.

Prayer Unanswered

Niteroi, Brazil (AP) — Leodaro Juliao, a 57-year-old beggar, prayed to an image of Saint Joseph, didn't get the things he wanted and later smashed the image with his cane, police said. He refused to say what he prayed for.

Consultant Proposal Eyed By Human Services Panel

The Human Services Advisory Committee Thursday considered a $60,000 proposal to hire a consultant to set up a model to assess human services needs in Lincoln.

The committee, created by the City Council to aid in the disbursement of revenue sharing funds, considered the proposal made by Peter Pslaum, senior research fellow of the Center for Applied Urban Research at the University of Nebraska-Omaha.

Pslaum said, if hired, he would begin work on the project Jan. 1 and would subcontract with Lincoln Community Services and the Bureau of Sociological Research in setting up the program.

The seven-member committee will further consider the proposal at a special meeting next Thursday.

The committee was proposed in Dick Gilliland's report as a blue ribbon panel to advise the council on hiring a staff for a planning analyst on the expenditure of $500,000 in revenue sharing funds for human service programs.

Members on the committee are Greg Hayden, Adam Breckenridge, Naomi Brill, Chauncey Barney, Joe Julian, Egbert Thompson and Homer Puderbaugh.

Southeast Health Planning Unit To Employ Added Professional

Members of the Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council voted Thursday night to hire as additional professional staff member and expand the fiscal 1974 budget in order to do so.

This Health Facilities and Services Planner is to serve as a resource to health committees and health-care professionals on issues such as health planning, and consolidation and development of health services, according to the job description adopted by the council.

The new planner would join the current three-member staff probably in February at an annual salary of about $17,500. The additional costs push the 1974 budget up from about $90,000 to about $103.000.

Council member Robert Brungard asked if a consultant could be employed, saving the council the cost of a full-time salary. He said that was one option in the federal directives under which the new planner is being hired.

The Department of Health Education and Welfare instructed regional agencies to alter staff make-up or lose federal monies.

The council's executive director, Bill Joern, said he felt the additional staff member was necessary to fulfill the council's obligations in health planning leadership in its 17-county area.

The council also approved an application from the Beighley Care Home, 904 Sumner, to build a new structure doubling its beds from 20 to 40.

The home houses mostly elderly and retarded people.

The council's recommendation will be forwarded to the State Health Department which must approve it before the home is eligible to receive any federal payments such as medicare for patients.

Later in the meeting, council members hesitated to take action on proposals because only eight members were present. board has 52 members when all vacancies are full. But since President M. A. Hartman declared a quorum at the beginning, a quorum was considered to exist throughout.

But the council did approve action to work directly with communities to establish emergency medical services, and approved an outline to begin planning for 1974 which included broad solicitation of opinions and agreement to insure continuation of this year's major, unfinished programs.

Phase 2 Plan Revealed By Creighton University

Omaha (AP) — Creighton University has revealed the major goals for Phase 2 of a 10-year $100 million development program.

The Rev. Joseph Labaj, university president, outlined five goals of the Centennial Thrust program Thursday evening. They are:

— A multi-purpose recreational-physical education-athletic facility.

— Completion of the Dr. C. C. and Mabel Criss Medical Center through the addition of a health science library and learning resource center; a new college of nursing facility; and other needed elements of the teaching hospital.

— A performing arts and communications arts center.

— Expansion of the university's central utilities system.

— An increase in academic and research program support from approximately $700,000 to $1 million annually.

Dryer Award To Dodge Man

Kansas City — William (Bill) Mlnarik, general manager of the Cooperative Supply Inc. of Dodge, Neb., won the Dryer award for outstanding cooperative management presented at the 45th annual meeting of Farmland Industries here.

Mlanarik has been manager of the 800 member cooperative at Dodge for 35 years. The co-op is a complete farm supply company serving a 15 mile radius.

Fire Destroys Office Trailer

A propane heating stove is thought to have been the cause of a fire which destroyed a trailer being used as an office at the Abel Asphalt Plant at Cornhusker and Airport Rd. Thursday afternoon.

District fire chief Gene Fenner said the trailer was almost totally destroyed, but some of the contents were salvaged.

Fire Disrupts Family's Plans

The plans of the John Hicks family to move into their new house were delayed Thursday morning when the house they had recently purchased was damaged considerably by fire.

District Fire Chief Marc Hansen said the fire in the house at 1940 Yorkshire was apparently started by a gas leak in an auxiliary furnace located in the attic and used to heat the upstairs bedrooms.

Hansen said the roof at one end of the building was completely burned out and there was extensive fire damage to the entire second story.

According to Hansen, the fire which was coming out of the roof when fire units arrived, took approximately one-half hour to bring under control.

$1.4 Million Lost

Anchorage, Alaska (AP) — The deputy Treasury Commissioner in the Alaska Department of Revenue, Larry Eppenbach, says the State's $15 million investment in common stocks lost $1.4 million during November.

Firemen Walk To Minor Blaze At Ogallala Jail

Ogallala (AP) — It was only coincidental with the current energy crisis that firemen here walked to a fire Thursday afternoon.

The fire was located in the city jail, which is in the City Hall building, directly across the street from the fire station.

Officer Evert Breece said a prisoner, Alfonso Moreno, 27, of Ogallala, apparently started the blaze.

The flames were quickly extinguished, and Moreno and another prisoner were transferred to the Keith County Jail for safe keeping.

Fire Damages Lincoln House

A fire at the Philomina Schrader residence at 315 So. 1st Thursday afternoon resulted in "considerable" damage to the house and its contents, according to district fire chief Marc Hansen.

Hansen said a portion of the living room was gutted and there was heavy heat and smoke damage to the rest of the house.

The blaze which took approximately five minutes to bring under control is thought to have been started by a faulty television set.

Oilman Tells Poultrymen People To Change Habits

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Fuel, the general problems related to the national energy supply, its effect on the poultry industry and agriculture in general dominated the afternoon program as the state's poultrymen wound up their two-day convention in Lincoln Thursday.

Don Crosier, representing the Nebraska Petroleum Council, told the poultrymen that the voluntary conservation program was not working as well as hoped, but he said, "It will work better as the shortage gets worse. We have a lot of people driving to work alone who will become willing to ride once their local gas station is out of fuel. As long as they can get gas they just don't take this thing seriously."

Crosier noted that most of the people were still using more lights than they really needed and suggested that the temperature in the meeting room at the Villager Motel was warmer than it really needed to be.

Exports Not Much

Crosier reported that some oil was being exported but the amount was very samll compared to the national fuel supply.

"Some of it is on long-term contracts that are hard to get out of. Some is oil produced along the Texas border in areas where there are no pipelines, so it is exported into Mexico, and some crude is exported for processing, returning as finished product. Altogether it is less than one per cent of our fuel supply," he said.

Crosier suggested that there were a number of new sources of energy which showed promise of technological problems can be solved.

Al Wellum, University of Nebraska agricultureal economist, told the poultrymen that there was a bright future for their industry even with a fuel shortage.

"If people have to stay at home, they will bake more and eat more red meats purchased with money now spent on gasoline," he suggested.

Wellman noted that the uncertain fuel supplies made predictions of prices and food production very risky.

Marx Koehnke, chief of the wheat division of the State Department of Agriculture, suggested that the poultrymen follow the example of the wheat producers in providing funds for a market development program.

"Farmer-financed programs in soybeans, wheat, tobacco, cotton and feed grains are working well. Exports have expanded greatly under these programs. Each country is different but there are huge demands for foods of all kinds," he said.

Howard Elm, executive director of the Nebraska Feed Dealers Association, told the poultrymen that the problems of Japan could soon become the problems of the American farmer.

"Japan more than doubled its purchases from us in the last year, which was more important to the American farmer than the Russian grain sale. If they collapse because they can't get fuel we will be in big trouble," he warned.

Elm said he doubted that feed prices would rise much in Nebraska unless cattle feeders started placing larger numbers of cattle in feedlots. "We could have 10% more grain to export than we have had in past years unless the feeders start placing cattle soon," he said.

"The key is fuel. Fuel to make fertilizer, to run the tractors, to dry grain. Without fuel there will be no feed grains and without feed grain there will be very little meat, milk or eggs produced," he warned.

Flags To Replace Christmas Lighting

Nebraska City — In an effort to support the energy crisis, members of the Nebraska City Lions Club have passed a resolution that Lions fly their flags at home in place of Christmas lighting. Flying flags will help make up for the lack of color everyone is used to around Christmas time, according to Jack Simms, who made the suggestion. The Lions Club is asking other area clubs to adopt the same resolution.

Special Collection Of $250 Stolen

North Platte — Under investigation here is the theft of collection money from St. Patrick's Church, according to the North Platte Police Department. About $250 of a special collection for the Campaign for Human Development was reportedly taken from a room at the back of the church, police reports show. Father James Warner told police the money, in a cloth sack, was missing when he returned to the room after a 10-minute interval.

Income Tax Workshops Planned

Nebraska attorneys and public accountants have been invited to participate in income tax workshops, each lasting two days, to be held at two locations in the state next week under sponsorship of the Nebraska Society of Certified Public Accountants. One will be Dec. 11-12 at the Yancey Hotel in Grand Island and will deal with individual income tax returns. On Dec. 13-14 a workshop on corporate income tax returns has been scheduled at the New Tower Motel in Omaha.

Reinstatement Of Police Chief Expected

Wayne (AP) — A District Court judge apparently will order the reinstatement of a former Wayne police chief who was fired in April. Judge George Dittrick said he would rule in favor of former chief Vern Fairchild, who was fired after an investigation of local liquor establishments. Wayne Mayor Kent Hall, who fired Fairchild, said Thursday the city has not decided whether it will appeal the ruling. Dittrick also said he would order that Fairchild receive back pay.

College Act Lawsuit Joined By Downer

Sidney (AP) — Banner County Clerk Robert Downer has joined the nine-county lawsuit against the financing structure of the Community College Act.

Downer, who enters the suit as a taxpayer, said his action is "an effort to keep this thing alive if the ruling goes against us."

The nine counties want a court ruling to the effect that the community college system is a state function and therefore collection of local property taxes for its support is unconstitutional. The defense argues that the counties, because they are not contributing to the support of the college system, are improperly waging the suit.

Downer's petition adds a taxpayer to the list of plaintiffs.

Cheyenne County District Judge John Kuns said a decision will be handed down "reasonably soon."

Downer has been the prime organizer of the legal challenge as well as the previous consitutional test which was dropped last year when the Legislature said it would amend the Community College Act.

If Kuns rules against the counties as plaintiffs, Downer said he would be left with the cost of pressing suit.

"It is a valid risk I think because I have had some mighty strong feelings about this right from the beginning. I think it could be vitally important to taxpayers in the future," he said.

The suit notes Downer is county clerk, assessor, clerk of district court and associate county judge of Banner County, but is files in his capacity as a taxpayer because he is a farmer and rancher and thus affected by the one mill levy.

Plaintiffs are Banner, Morrill Sheridan, Deuel, Kimball, Cheyenne, Box Butte, Sioux and Dawes Counties.

Defendants are Scotts Bluff, Garden, and Cherry Counties and the Western Nebraska Technical Community College Area Board.

Thone Calls For Probe Of Food Price Spread

WASHINGTON (AP) — A second House Republican has called for an investigation of increases in the farm-to-retail food price spread since August, when prices reached their record peak and started a decline.

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., said the Agriculture Committee may hold hearings on the issue next month, describing thepanel's chairman, Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., as "very interested in this problem."

Another committeeman, Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., made a similar call last week.

Thone said he has also asked the Federal Trade Commission to hold hearings on the farm-retail spreads.

The over-all spread, according to Agriculture Department figures last week, has risen about 11 per cent since August while the price farmers receive for their raw products has fallen about 15 per cent.

Thone said that the spread for choice beef increased by 48 per cent between August and mid-October.

"October is the latest date for which USA has the price-spread data, but the department does have figures showing that the average price received by U. S. farmers for all beef cattle dropped an additional 7 per cent between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15 . . . Supermarkets are not at all reflecting the extent of these drops in their beef prices," Thone said.

Fatally Burned Man Is Found

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — A man — believed to be elderly — was found burned to death in a small building here. He was not immediately identified.

Officers said the building housed a fruit stand and living quarters.

Assistant Fire Chief Leo Fleming said the operator of the food stand was housed nearby and was not in the building at the time. An investigation was underway.

2 Nebraskans Die In Separate Road Accidents

By The Associated Press

Two Nebraskans died in separate highway accidents Wednesday, raising the fatality toll for 1973 to 408, compared with 445 on this date a year ago.

The State Patrol said Charles W. Yount Jr., 26, of McCook, died when the car he was riding in went out of control and rolled into the barrow pit 2½ miles east of Cambridge on Highway 6.

Investigators said the auto was driven by Kathleen Yount.

An accident on an icy county road two miles southeast of Dwight in Butler County claimed the life of Anthony J. Kouma, 32, of Rt. 1, Dwight.

The State Patrol said Kouma was alone in his pickup when it spun out of control and rolled into a ditch.

Access Road Discussed In Cordova

Cordova (AP) — Approximately 100 persons from Utica, Exeter, Beaver Crossing, Milligan, Friend and Cordova, interested in obtaining a better access road to Interstate 80 from the south, met here Wednesday night.

In the past, the Roads Dept. has been asked to consider two access routes — one using the line of the road between Friend and Beaver Crossing, and the other, running northward from Cordova.

In an attempt to reach a compromise, it was decided to establish a coordinating committee with three members from each community.

Participants in the meeting included State Sens. Richard Maresh of Milligan and Walter Epke of York; Fred Krause of the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation, and County Board members from Seward and Fillmore counties.

Regents Accept Hiram Scott

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

With the enthusastic support of Gov. J. James Exon, the University of Nebraska Board of Regents Thursday became the new owners of the former Hiram Scott College at Scottsbluff.

The unanimous vote accepted ownership of 225 acres of land and several buildings owned by the Scottsbluff-Gering Payroll Development Corp. and a library-science building owned by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Not included are the dormitories at the bankrupt college. The regents said they no longer were interested in the dorms.

The science portion of the HEW-owned building will be transformed into the headquarters of the Panhandle Experiment Station, which will also use the land for agricultural research purposes.

Houses To Be Sold

A warehouse-type structure is to be used for machine storage and mechanical work, and two residences are to be sold.

And finally, the building at Mitchell which has been the ag station's headquarters was slated for use as a satellite animal diagnostic laboratory to the North Platte lab, which was described as "overtaxed."

Exon, who made a personal appearance at the meeting to endorse use of Hiram Scott for agricultural research and extension, told the board he would still veto any move to make the facility a "fourth campus" of NU.

Exon opposed a legislative move during the 1973 session to create a rural health and continuing education center there.

'Total Support'

But he said he had always endorsed the idea of Hiram Scott use for ag research purposes. "If the regents proceed on this basis," he said, "you will have my total support."

He also informed the board that the seven members of a special study committee previously opposed to NU acquisition of Hiram Scott now were supporting the concept.

"I am pleased indeed with the whole discussion and approach taken on possible utilization of Hiram Scott," Exon began his remarks.

He said those discussions "seemed to have taken an abrupt turn from what was originally proposed," and thus he was ready to endorse the revised concept "without question."

Part of the board-approved motion called for using $295,000 approved by the 1973 Legislature for capital improvements at the Panhandle Station for the remodeling necessary at the library-science building.

Plan Approved

Exon said he also approved that plan and predicted the Legislature's executive board would endorse it. The regents were told it would cost about $25,000 less than that appropriation to do the necessary remodeling.

The governor said he was pleased no other funding would be needed immediately and that future additional funding would be of a "minimal nature."

A report from Ag college officers said about $20,000 a year in additional operating costs will be needed to fund research at the new headquarters.

Exon also noted he had suggested building a $1 million animal diagnostic lab at the Scottsbluff site, but said he now would approve building that structure on the East Campus in Lincoln.

Ag interests have opposed building that lab at Hiram Scott.

"I stand ready to approve the million dollars to get going on that building," said Exon. The regents subsequently approved that request.

In a related matter, the board approved low bids for construction a an addition to the veterinary diagnostic lab at North Platte, where the major work in western Nebraska for that purpose will continue.

NU Telecommunications Link Backed

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents Thursday endorsed in concept the development of a university-owned telecommunications network linking Omaha and Lincoln.

Final approval of the proposal will await a consulting engineer's study of bid specifications and bid evaluation procedures and a regental decision on how to fund such a system.

Walter Bruning, who chaired a task force which studied possibilities for the intercampus link-up, told the board it would cost about $300,000 to install the microwave network and another $150,000 to build and equip closed-circuit television studios on each of the three campuses.

But he said the $300,000 investment could be paid off, in about 6½ years, by savings in telephone company line usage. The university now spends $64,000 a year for telephone and data tranmission, he said.

$75,000 A Year

Bruning also estimated it would cost about $75,000 a year to operate the system.

The report from the task force was the first from several such groups appointed to provide recommendations for implementing priorities of the board-approved five-year plan "Towards Excellence."

Other reports will be heard at coming board meetings.

Bruning said his group was proposing eventual construction of the microwave network to handle closed-circuit TV with two-way talk-back capability, Lincoln-Omaha telephone calls and computer network data transmission.

Bruning heads the NU System-run computer network.

He said the hook-up would provide the university campuses with technological capability for intercampus conferences and class instruction and seminars and help boost a "sense of community" among the three campuses.

Reduction in fuel and personnel time for intercity travel would be significant, he suggested.

60 To 90 Days

A consultant's study on the bids will cost no more than $25,000 and take 60 to 90 days. That was ordered by the regents.

In other matters at the meeting, the board approved a recommendation to appoint a state wide task force on rural health manpower, approved previously announced bids for a new equalized fringe benefit and insurance policy for all the campuses and appointed a new executive vice president for administration.

The new vice president, William C. Erskine, will join NU Feb. 1 at an annual salary of 37,800. He is now a vice president of the University of Colorado at Boulder.

The approval of contracts on fringe benefits and insurance represents final regental action to insure a Jan. 1 start for a much-discussed plan to provide comparable benefits for all NU employes.

The rural health study idea, said NU President D. B. Varner, was one result of a day-long session last week on the subject. That session was for Varner's advisory council, a statewide citizens group.

He said the task force would include laymen, physicians and university members.

The board also approved other previously announced personnel recommendations.

Stanley Given Waiver Power On 175-Day School Year Law

The State Board of Education Thursday gave Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley discretionary powers to grant waivers from state law requiring 175 class days each school year to schools running out of fuel.

The action allows Stanley considerable latitude in permiting schools to cut classes to 170 days without risking a cut in state funds when a fuel shortage necessitates shutting down schools.

Stanley reported that most schools in Nebraska hold 180 to 185 class days each year; just how many schools may need waiver is uncertain, he said.

Only Last Resort

Indications were that a waiver would be granted only as a last resort when a school district has shown it has done everything in its power to meet the 175-day requirement.

Board President Gerald Whelan of Hastings said, "A lot of people feel that there are a lot of other things we can do this winter without lowering the minimum number of days for each school year."

R. Jerry Hargitt, an Omaha board member, suggested that school districts which have been forced to close classes should notify Stanley concerning possibly making-up the lost class days after April 1. The board approved that suggestion and added it to Stanley's duties.

Current law authorizes the board to grant five-day waivers for epidemics and storm conditions and at the board's discretion.

Stanley and his staff had considered spelling out how the school districts granted waivers should recoup the lost class time, but that approach was abandoned in favor of dealing with each situation individually.

Accept Or Reject

The resolution approved by the board gives Stanley the power to accept or reject locally initiated attempts to meet the energy crisis. Stanley's decision can be appealed to the board.

"We felt this would be better than bringing in 500 or 1,000 different cases for board consideration," Stanley said. "Each of these would be different and probably wouldn't fall into any one category."

Stanley said after the meeting that he would attempt to get schools declared an essential government function, thus enduring them a priority in the distribution of fuel.

Thus far, federal and state plans have not regarded the schools as a priority user. Stanley said he would raise the matter with Nebraska's congressional delegation.

School Bus Laws

In other action, the board accepted department efforts to get Nebraska laws regarding school bus safety changed. Gerald Soderquist of the department's staff told the board that one school bus driver and two children were killed this past year in separate school bus mishaps.

Recommended changes in Nebraska's laws included:

—tightening of follow-up enforcement of laws prohibiting cars from passing buses while loading and unloading.

—require school buses not carrying students to stop at railroad crossings just as loaded buses must.

—increasing the distance requiring buses in rural areas to use their warning lights from 300-500 feet to 500-1,000 feet.

The board also directed the department to move up plans for construction of four buildings, including a resource center, at the Cozad School for the trainable mentally retarded by one year. The new schedule calls for awarding bids for construction of two residence cottages for 32 children, a classroom and an administration building in the spring of 1975.

The new schedule was made possible by a planning grant of $5,000 from Cozad area residents and the donation of 5½ acres by the City of Cozad to the state.

The structures, costing $797,970 ultimately, will have to be approved by the Legislature.

Telephones Remain Out In 11 Towns

Eleven southeastern Nebraska communities still remained without long distance telephone service by late Thursday, according to a spokesman of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Following Tuesday's severe ice and wind storm, about 30 towns were left minus long distance service.

However, long distance service was still out to Johnson, Nehawka, DeBois, Dawson, Humboldt and Table Rock.

A total of 1,400 LT&T telephone poles were broken during the storm, affecting 3,000 customers, the company revealed Thursday.

Three-hundred company workers are still on the job repairing damaged lines and hope to have all long distance service restored by Monday, the LT&T spokesman added.

Drug Aid Could Go To Omaha

Gov. J. James Exon announced Thursday Omaha has been designated as an "indicator city" by the special action office of the National Drug Enforcement Administration.

Exon said the designation means Omaha has a possibility of receiving up to $400,000 in federal money for a pilot project of one to three years.

In general, Exon said the project would include not only identification of the drug problem but treatment for abusers.

However, according to Jeff Kushner, head of the State Drug Commission, the effort would not center on "hard drugs."

Postal System Boosts Service Hours Slightly

The Lincoln Postal System has slightly stretched its window service hours during the Christmas season, according to Postmaster L. G. Moore.

However, there will be regular office hours on Dec. 24.

The temporary Saturday hours will be 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Dec. 8 and 15, and 8 a.m. to noon, Dec. 22.

Temporary weekday hours for Dec. 10 through Dec. 21 will be: 7:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the Main Office, 700 R, and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for Stations A, at 110 N. 35th, B, at 3256 S. 13th, and C, at 5945 R, College View, 4732 Calvert, Havelock, 4329 N. 61st, and University Place, 2427 N. 48th.

Tiemann Orders Signs Along I-80 Taken Down

Federal Highway Administrator Norbert Tiemann Thursday ordered Nebraska's attraction signs along I-80, noting the state's tourist spots to motorist, taken down but allowed radio frequency signs to remain standing.

Gov. J. James Exon, whose administration constructed those signs, immediately appealed Tiemann's order to take the attraction signs down.

Taking them down would prove to be an "unwarranted expense," Exon said, in light of the economic asset studies have shown them to be in encouraging tourism.

"I sincerely believe Nebraska's attraction signs have accomplished their purpose beyond a shadow of a doubt and should remain as aids to our travellers and a source of pride to Nebraskans," Exon said.

Farmers Said Not Receiving Needed Fuels

Washington (UPI) — Some oil companies are lagging in notifying local distributors about federal rules giving farmers priority in distribution of diesel fuel and other petroleum products, chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex. of the House Agriculture Committee said Thursday.

Poage said many farmers are still not getting needed fuels for fall harvesting and other field work.

Poage urged the oil companies to "make every effort to see that this word (about speedy deliveries to farmers) is quickly passed on to every consumer outlet."

Fairmont Will Trim Operations

Omaha (AP) — Fairmont Foods Co., Omaha-based dairy, snack foods and convenience store firm, said Wednesday it plans to streamline its operations nationwide.

C. D. Solomonson, president, said in a letter to stockholders that Fairmont is divesting "certain unprofitable operations in order to eliminate losses and to . . . concentrate our efforts and resources in our highest potential areas."

Control of Fairmont, which had sales during the last fiscal year of $376 million, is being sought by Kay Corp. of New York and Alexandria, Va., parent company of Union Stock Yards Co. of Omaha. Kay is a subsidiary of Bowater Corp. Ltd. of Loncon.

Fairmont officials have been resisting Kay Corp.'s bid, and Solomonson's letter was part of the campaign by management to turn back the Kay challenge.

Operations divested by Fairmont include parts of its East-Central Dairy Division, described in the letter as a major profit drain with losses for eight months of this fiscal year of $326,800, or eight cents per share.

Also, the "Lawton, Okla., dairy facility, a branch of our South Central Dairy Division . . . a marginal or loss operation over the past three years" is being sold, the letter said.

The letter reported improved operating results in the third quarter of this year.

The board also voted an extra dividend of 2.5 cents per share payable Jan. 7 to stockholders of record Dec. 7.

Los Angeles (AP) — Japanese Ambassador Takeshi Yashukawa cautioned the United States against a "go-it-alone" drive to achieve energy self-sufficiency.

Stock Prices Soar

New York (AP) — Hopes for an easing of the Arab oil embargo contributed to a technical rebound on the stock market Thursday as prices soared higher in their best daily rise in nearly six months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which has slumped nearly 200 points or 20 per cent since Oct. 26, climbed 25.81 points, to 814.12 Thursday. The advance was the seventh highest on record and the best closing rise since May 24, when it rose 29.42 partly on rumors of an easing of dividend restrictions.

Advances held a 977-to-548 lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume was a healthy total of 23.26 million shares. The Big Board's broad-based index advanced 1.11 to 50.16 as the American Stock Exchange market value index rose 1.31 to 90.04.

Brokers noted some carry-over of the technical rebound begun late Wednesday, when the Dow closed 14-90 lower. A reaction to the severely depressed market, the rebound was helped by some buy recommendations from major investment firms like A.G. Becker & Co.

On the Big Board, Gulf Oil led trading, up ⅝ at 21, after a 449,500-share block crossed at 20½, up ⅛. Other active issues on blocks included Ramada Inns, Steady at 4¾, British Petroleum, ahead ⅛. Other active issues on blocks included Ramada Inns, steady at 4¾, British Petroleum, ahead ⅛ at 13¾, and Kasyer Roth, up 1 at 12¼.

Autos rebounded higher with General Motors up 1⅞ to 46⅞; Ford Motors 2⅞ to 41⅞; and Chrysler up 1⅜ to 16⅛. After the close GM announced record-breaking capital expansion plans for 1974.

Advancing groups included steels, aircrafts, electronics, metals, and chemicals. Eastman Kodak jumped 7 to 110¾; IBM, 7½ to 260¾; Polaroid, 6⅛ to 78¾; and Xerox, 4⅛ to 126½. All have been bid downward in past weeks.

On the Amex, Syntex gained 5⅝ to 122⅞ as the volume leader. Late Thursday the company said 1974 earnings might exceed its earlier estimate. Imperial Oil rose ½ to 41⅞; the oil company has a stake in Canadian tar sands.

Strong Demand Lifts Soybeans

Chicago (AP) — A strong demand, mostly of a local nature, lifted soybean and soybean oil prices to limits for one session on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

Soybeans rose 20 cents a bushel and soybean oil 100 points, or 1 cent a pound. Soybean meal was up around $8 a ton, $2 short of a limit move.

One wheat option touched the limit early, but wheat closed just a fraction off the 20 cent move. Corn futures advanced some 8 cents a bushel and oats were up around 4 cents.

Lincolnite Didn't Undergo Eye Transplant Operation

Lincoln Star Special

Omaha — Although the unidentified elderly Lincoln woman didn't undergo an eye transplant operation here Wednesday, the eyes delivered during a Tuesday's snowstorm mercy mission were used by other patients.

The Lincolnite's relatives and doctor decided she should not risk traveling to Omaha Wednesday on icy highways, according to the public relations office of the University of Nebraksa College of Medicine.

"Consequently, according to Lions Eye Bank procedures, the eyes were given to a physician whose patients were determined to need them most, and the eyes were used," College of Medicine officials disclosed Thursday.

The mercy mission began Tuesday at Hastings with the death of an eye donor. The State Patrol transported the eyes to Greenwood where they were picked up about 2 p.m. by State Trooper Bob Piercy of Omaha.

Upon reaching Omaha at the height of the snowstorm, Trooper Piercy, 48, found his mission blocked by stalled cars and trucks.

After parking his patrol car, he walked 30 blocks to University Hospital to complete the delivery.

The Lincoln woman was at the top of the list of persons awaiting the transplant, hospital officials said.

Corps Asked To Check Flood Damage Figures

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — U. S. Corps of Engineers officials were requested Thursday to take a "second look" at their compilation of damages in Beatrice's recent flood.

The request was made by Ron Fleecs, manager of the Lower Big Blue River Natural Resources District.

The corps' figures show a sharp discrepancy from higher figures compiled by state agencies.

Fleecs said he believes the state figures are "much closer" to the actual losses incurred.

During a joint meeting of the Upper and Lower Big Blue River Natural Resources districts this week, it was disclosed that the corps estimated damages in Beatrice at $1,809,495, compared to state estimates of nearly $5.3 million.

By far the biggest discrepancy was the residential loss, which the corps set at $834,595. A state report had listed 13,750,000 for homes partially damaged plus $750,000 for 50 said to be total losses.

"That makes a difference of over $3.5 million which has to be resolved someplace," said Fleecs.

On the other hand the corps estimated $690,500 in commercial loss, while the state had shown this to be only $370,000. The corps also allowed more for public and municipal damages, $229,500 as compared to a state estimate of $155,000.

An industrial loss of $54,900 was included in the corps report, while the state had none for this category.

Fleecs said the discrepancy could partly be explained because of the timing of the surveys. A corps team visited the area Nov. 6-9, while the state's compilations were done somewhat earlier.

Fleecs noted that neither survey took into account lost income, which the Beatrice Chamber of Commerce estimated at more than $1 million.

"When the corps team revisits the area as it is planning to do, we'll just have to sit down with different agencies and get the figures ironed out," said Fleecs.

Proxmire Asks Bork's Ouster

Washington (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged Thursday that Robert H. Bork is serving illegally as acting attorney general and asked a U.S. district court to remove him from office.

Proxmire retained a Washington lawyer, Alan B. Morrison, who filed a suit seeking Bork's ouster.

The suit was based on a law that limits the term of any person who temporarily fills a vacancy as head of any executive department to 30 days.

Cotton, Rose As Expected

Had most of the pre-season football ratings prognosticators carried their summer selections out to bowl pairings, they'd have been 100 per cent correct on the matchups for the Cotton and Rose bowls on New Year's Day.

If the Southern Cals, Alabamas, Texases and Nebraskas hadn't bothered to play the silly season and just gone right from the pages of most of the pre-season poop sheets into bowl games to decide the national championship, you'd have found Nebraska meeting Texas in the Cotton Bowl and Ohio State facing Southern Cal in the Rose Bowl.

Even after playing the season, they're there anyway, but the stakes aren't nearly as glamorous as they would have been had they just taken Street & Smith's or Football Roundup's or The Football News' word for it.

Instead of vying for national championship votes with their performances on New Year's Day, Nebraska, Texas, Ohio State and Southern Cal will simply be trying to add another layer of salve to soothe varying degrees of disappointment suffered during the 1973 season.

Southern Cal and Ohio State were ranked 1-2, respectively in the pre-season ratings by Kickoff Magazine, Football Roundup, Street & Smith and The Associated Press.

Thus had the ratings in December been as those were in August, the Buckeyes and Trojans would be playing for the national championship on Jan. 1 in Pasadena, Calif.

AP Says Texas 3rd, NU 4th

The Associated Press pre-season poll showed Texas No. 3 and Nebraska No. 4 behind the Trojans and Buckeyes and that kind of rating most likely would have led the Huskers to the Cotton Bowl where its hopes for a national championship could have rested on an impressive showing against the Longhorns while USC and Ohio State were playing it close.

The Football News' rankings last spring had Nebraska No. 1, Texas No. 2 and that paper's pre-season poll in the fall had Southern Cal first, Ohio State third with Texas No. 2 and Nebraska No. 4.

United Press International's pre-season poll of its coaching board had Southern Cal No. 1, Nebraska No. 2, Ohio State third and Texas fourth.

And The Sporting News had those four in its top five with Ohio State first, Nebraska third, Southern Cal fourth and Texas fifth.

Notre Dame broke into that foursome's monopoly of the pre-season rankings, being rated second by The Sporting News.

Alabama, which is No. 1 going into the bowl games, wasn't No. 1 in any of the pre-season listings and wasn't even in the top ten of The Football News' spring rankings.

Sports Illustrated, Kickoff Best

Ironically, at least within the borders of this state, the best records at forecasting the top ten were two publications which made Nebraska fans the maddest.

Sports Illustrated rated the Huskers 12th and Kickoff placed them 20th, but those were two of only three pre-season listings to have nine of their top 10 choices wind up in the top ten at the end of the regular season.

The other publication to have nine right was Street & Smith, missing only on Nebraska which it had seventh. Kickoff's lemon was Tennessee and Sports Illustrated went wrong on Colorado.

Nebraska was easily the biggest disappointment with Tennessee running second in that negative department.

And Oklahoma was easily the biggest surprise with only Kickoff (10th), Football Roundup (7th) and Street & Smith (9th) listing the Sooners in their pre-season top ten.

The top ten teams at the end of the regular season with both The Associated Press and United Press International were Alabama, Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Michigan, Penn State, Southern Cal, Texas, UCLA and Arizona State.

Husker Cagers Face First Road Test

Probable Lineups

NEBRASKA (2-0)	Pos.	VANDERBILT (2-0)
Mark Enright (6-9)	F	Terry Compton (6-5)
Steve Erwin (6-4)	F	Lee Fowler (6-6)
Ron Taylor (6-10)	C	Breda Kolff (6-8)
Jerry Fort (6-3)	G	Joe Ford (6-2)
Ricky Marsh (63-)	G	Bill Ligon (6-4)

Tipoff: 9 p.m. (Lincoln time), Memorial Gymnasium, Nashville, tenn.

Nashville, Tenn. — Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano knows the magnitude of the task his Husker team faces in the opening round of the Vanderbilt Invitational here Friday night.

"Vanderbilt doesn't lose very often at home and for us to win, it'll take a top effort," he said of the 9 p.m. (Lincoln time) game with the host Commodores at Memorial Gymnasium.

The opening match pits Middle Tennessee against Tennessee State, which went to the finals of the NCAA College Division Tournament last year. The winners meet for the championship at 9 p.m. Saturday and the losers compete for third place at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Although the Huskers have defeated Wyoming and Minnesota-Duluth at the Coliseum, Vanderbilt has won its first two road tests. The Commodores defeated Rice (89-80) and Texas Tech (84-82).

"Vanderbilt's done a good job of building tradition and a homecourt advantage," Cipriano said. "They may have more talent than Kansas (one of the Big Eight's promising teams) and they're a little older with more sophomores and juniors. But we have an advantage on the boards (in height) if we can just take advantage of it."

With 6-10 freshman Ron Taylor at center, 6-9 freshman Mark Enright and 6-4 junior Steve Erwin at forwards and 6-3 guard Jerry Fort, NU has four players who collectively have averaged 54.5 points in the two opening tilts. Fort leads with 18.0 while Erwin has 17.0, Taylor has 12.0 and Enright has averaged at a 7.5 clip.

Coach Roy Skinner, with seven of 11 lettermen and four starters from last year's 206 squad which tied for seconf place behind Kentucky in the Southeastern Conference, has a potent attack.

Last year's scoring leader, Terry Compton, a 6-5 forward, hit for a 17.7 point average last season while 6-8 center Jan Van Breda Kolff (the son of Memphis Tams' coach Butch Van Breda Kolff), 6-6 sophomore forward Jeff Fosnes and 6-3 sophomore guard Butch Feher are all available.

NU assistant coach Moe Iba scouted Vanderbilt in its victory at Texas Tech and Cipriano said Iba termed the Commodores "a good mobile team and a team where everybody is going to play a lot of positions.

"It will be interesting to see how our young team does in its first game on the road this season," Cipriano said. "We've talked this week (to the Huskers) about getting accustomed to officials on the road. Defense is really going to be important since people are going to shoot better at home."

This will be Nebraska's second appearance at the Vanderbilt Invitational. NU lost to LaSalle, 99-76, in the 1966 meet but rebounded to nip Portland State, 71-69, for third place.

Vanderbilt has won the two previous games with the Huskers, taking a 66-48 decision in 1955-56 and a 78-54 win in 1956-57. Both games were at Nashville.

The Huskers return to the Coliseum to face Georgia State at 7:35 p.m. Tuesday.

— BOTH MUST WIN FRIDAY TOURNEY TESTS —

OU, Creighton Tilt Eyed Saturday

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — The last time Creighton and Oklahoma met in basketball was way back in 1920-21 when Creighton prevailed, 27-16.

Although Oklahoma must defeat San Diego State and Creighton must topple the Air Force Academy in Friday night tests, the two schools are favorites to meet for the championship of the Creighton Cage Classic Saturday night at 9 p.m. at Omaha Civic Auditorium.

Thus, the first major college basketball tournament in Omaha's history may present a final game between a Big Eight team which must be rated one of the favorites for that league's crown against a Creighton team which has serious aspriations of achieving a berth in a post-season tournament.

Coach Eddie Sutton's Bluejays, who meet AFA at 9 p.m. Friday, have the most experience of the four squads with an all-lettermen starting lineup that has averaged 93.5 points in its two opening tests.

With 6-6 forward Gene Harmon, the team's Most Valuable Player the past two years, the Bluejays have trounced Regis, 92-38, and South Dakota State 95-68. Creighton can also employ 7-0 reserve center Mike Heck, a former Nebraska all-stater from Papillion.

The only junior in CU's four-man senior lineup is 6-8 center Doug Brookins, from New Paris, Ind.

While Oklahoma can start only one senior (6-0) guard Lee Gilbert), it is a sophomore, Alvan Adams, whom coach Joe Ramsey hopes will be the one player that will transform OU into a Big Eight titlist.

As a freshman last season, Adams, a 6-9 center, was named The Associated Press' Big Eight player-of-the-year for scoring at a 22.1 clip and rebounding at a 13.2 rate — ranking him first among the nation's freshmen in the rebounding department.

The Sooners have split their opening two games, defeating Oklahoma City, 87-68, behind a 19-point effort from transfer 6-4 forward Herb Williams from Paducah (KY.) Junior College and then dropping a last-second 66-64 verdict at home to nationally-regarded Jacksonville.

While San Diego State and Air Force are definite underdogs to OU and CU, the western invaders present enough positive criteria to make an upset possible.

Coach Dick Davis' Aztecs (which took a last-second, 63-61, win in 1971 at Lincoln against Nebraska) will open its season in the Classic.

With six returning lettermen (of which only two will start) from last year's 15-11 team, Davis is more optimistic about this season.

Despite losing its first two games (65-61 to Colorado and 67-60 to Southern Colorado), the Air Force, with its control offense and tight defense, can always present difficulties when those two elements are correctly functioning.

Rich Nickelson, a 6-5 senior forward who averaged 16.4 points-per-game a year ago, is the only senior starter.

Knights Hoping To Stop Hedberg

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

The assignment is crystal clear — stop 6-8 Curt Hedberg. If Lincoln Southeast can accomplish that, the Knights expect to defeat Lincoln East Friday night at Pershing Auditorium.

"The defensive challenge is to stop their whole front line. But Hedberg is the one who can hurt you the most," says Southeast coach Wally McNaught.

While the Knights concentrate on defense in their Trans-Nebraska Conference game, Lincoln High will be looking for some offensive punch in a Trans-Nebraska battle at Hastings.

The Links, who graduated their seven top scorers from last season, face another test Saturday night when they return to Johnson Gym to host Metro Conference power Omaha Westside.

Two other games involving Lincoln teams are slated for Saturday night. Defending state champion Northeast hosts Kearney, the team it defeated in the semifinals last March, at East's Gym.

Meanwhile, Lincoln Pius X invades Council Bluffs (Ia.) for a non-conference contest against St. Albert's.

"We're going to be a little more rough and I don't mean that purely in a physical sense," Southeast coach McNaught says of the East collision.

"Gary Gilson's matchup with Hedberg will be very crucial," he adds, "but Gary doesn't have the smoothness, timing or coordination of Hedberg. So, we'll have to help him as much as possible off the ball.

"It's a real defensive challenge. Hedberg can go inside and still pop 'em in from outside," observes McNaught, whose Knights have won a 2-point decision and lost a 2-point verdict to East in December the past two years.

"We have to check East off the boards and give them only one shot because if we don't, we're in trouble with the type of people they have inside," says McNaught.

He points out that half of Southeast's Trans-Nebraska games, which count in the standings, are December contests.

Knollenberg, Strain Pace NWU's Triumph

BY STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Seward — Bob Knollenberg made the key play at the end of the game, but John Strain was probably the difference in the game.

Knollenberg made two freethrows with six seconds left to preserve Nebraska Wesleyan's 77-74 over Dana win here Thursday afternoon in the Nebraska Intercolliegate Athletic Conference's pre-season basketball tournament.

However, Strain scored 23 points in the second half and a career high of 31 to hold back the pesky Vikings.

The Plainsmen were somewhat hampered with 6-6 transfer Gene Parks ailing with the flu and leading scorer Steve Joekel who had trouble making baskets.

Dana also got exceptional play out of 6-2 sophomore Brian Traylor, who scored a career high of 32 points and Barry Olson, with 15 points and Jim Huseman, who had 18. Olson and Huseman scored in double figures for the first time this year.

But NWU, led by Strain rebounded from a 35-32 halftime deficit to down the Vikings, now 1-2, while Dr. Irv Peterson's Capital City team is now 3-0.

NWU outrebounded the Blair crow 55-39, with Strain leading the way with 16.

MacPhail Moves AL Offices To NY

Houston (AP) — Lee MacPhail, the new president of the American League, said Thursday that the league will relocate its offices from Boston to New York.

The AL office has been in Boston since 1959 when Joe Cronin was elected president. MacPhail succeeds Cronin on Jan. 1.

Texans Also Picked

NEW YORK (UPI) — Players from Ohio State and Southern California, opponents in the New Year's Day Rose Bowl game, make up nearly one-third of the United Press International All-America college football team announced Thursday.

The Buckeyes, ranked third in the final UPI ratings, placed four players on the All-America squad while the seventh-ranked Trojans named three to the first team in a balloting of sportswriters and sportscasters across the nation.

Selected from Ohio State were senior offensive tackle John Hicks, sophomore running back Archie Griffin, junior defensive end Van DeCree and senior linebacker Randy Gradishar. Gradishar, an All-America as a junior also, is the only repeater from last year's team.

Southern California, which won the Pacific Eight Conference title, was represented by senior flanker Lynn Swann, junior linebacker Richard Wood and senior defensive back Artimus Parker on the 22-man first unit.

Nebraska, Notre Dame, Texas and Penn State each had two players named to the All-America first team.

Senior defensive tackle John Dutton and senior offensive tackle Daryl White were chosen from Nebraska, senior tight end Dave Casper and senior defensive back Willie Townsend were selected from Notre Dame, senior center Bill Wyman and junior running back Roosevelt Leaks represented Texas and senior defensive tackle Randy Crowder and Heisman Trophy winner John Cappelletti were named from Penn State.

The first team offensive backfield accounted for 56 touchdowns and 6,496 yards this season while leading their teams to a combined record of 34-5-2.

The 6-foot-2, 212-pound Jaynes, who led Kansas to a 7-3-1 record and a berth in the Liberty Bowl, finished fourth among the nation's passers, averaging 15.6 completions per game. He also totalled 2,131 yards passing and accounted for 17 touchdowns.

Cappelletti, a 6-2, 206-pounder, scored 17 touchdowns and rushed for 1,522 yards while leading Penn State to a perfect 11-0 season and a berth in the Orange Bowl.

The 5-11, 209-pound Leaks led Texas to an 8-2 record and a berth in the Cotton Bowl as he set a school single season rushing record with 1,415 yards. He also came within eight yards of an NCAA single game record when he rushed for 342 yards against SMU in a nationally-televised game. Griffin, an explosive 5-9, 184-pounder, gained more than 100 yards rushing in every game this year, though he seldom played all four quarters. He gained 1,428 yards and scored eight touchdowns in pacing the Buckeyes to a 9-0-1 record and a spot in the Rose Bowl.

Former Illini Coach To Address NU Fete

Former Illinois football coach Ray Eliot will be the featured speaker at the annual banquet honoring the Nebraska football team.

The banquet will be held Dec. 18 at the Hotel Cornhusker.

Bobick Drops Brooks In 2nd

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Ringside reporters here are writing a new chapter in local boxing history after Thursday night's heavyweight bout between Duane Bobick and Reco Brooks.

The latest chapter has been dubbed "The Flight of the Phantom Punch."

Bobick, 23, a former Olympian from Bowlus, Minn., startled all in attendance by dropping Brooks for the count with an almost unseen shot at 2:19 of the second round.

The win was the 15th in as many pro-outings for Bobick, who is now based in Denver, fighting with the Billy Daniels stable.

It was a short, left hook that put Brooks out, but Dick Noland of the sponsoring Cornhusker Boxing Club was suspicious and called for a hold on the purse.

Nebraska Athletic Commission officials met with referee Gene Buzzello, then announced that the purse would not be held up.

Buzzello said it was definitely a clean knockout.

NU Defense Against Pass Tops Nation

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a vintage year for team defenses—particularly at Miami of Ohio where Bill Mallory did what a long list of impressive predecessors failed to accomplish.

Mallory's team, which finished 10-0, won its first major college defense championship at the "Cradle of Coaches," where Woody Hayes, Ara Parseghian and Sid Gillman sharpened their coaching skills before going on to further greatness.

Miami's first undefeated, untied team since 1955 allowed only a total of 177.4 yards rushing and passing per game, the best national mark in the past five years, and also led the nation with 77.0 yards allowed rushing per game, in final rankings announced today by National Collegiate Sports Service.

Ohio State captured the scoring defense championship, posting the best mark in the country in the past seven years with its 4.3 points per game average.

Nebraska's yield of 39.9 passing yards per game was the best since 1960, and has been surpassed by only four majors in the last 25 years. The Cornhuskers also allowed a completion mark of .282, best since 1947, and topped by only one major school since 1946. Nebraska allowed only one touchdown pass.

Kansas led in interception percentage, picking off 15.2 per cent of opponents' passes, and UCLA led with 467 interception return yards.

Midway in the first half, the Cowboys came within five points of the 18th ranked Tide, 25-20, but then Charles Cleveland hit two 20-foot jump shots. Oklahoma St. Coach Guy Young was called for a technical and the Tide took a commanding lead.

The Cowboy's scoring was led by forward Kevin Fitzgerald with 19 points, but the spark of the team was freshman 5-foot-11 guard Ronnie Daniels. Daniels hit for 14 points and with his ball handling, he got the call to break the Alabama press.

Los Angeles (UPI) — Athletic Director J.D. Morgan may already know the name of UCLA's next football coach but he's not talking for publication for the moment.

San Diego May Sue Following Padres' Sale

HOUSTON (AP) — The National League faced certain legal action from the City of San Diego Thursday after approving the sale of the Padres to grocery chain store operator Joseph Danzansky in a move that returns baseball to Washington, D.C.

The day's big news, though, concerned the long-rumored shift of the San Diego franchise to the nation's capital.

After two days of discussion, NL President Chub Feeney, looking drawn and obviously feeling the pressure of the locked-door meeting, announced the decision.

"The National League has unanimously voted to move to Washington, D.C.," said Feeney. He never mentioned San Diego—but he didn't have to.

Feeney said the move was contingent on certain conditions that must be met by Dec. 21. He refused to elaborate on what those conditions might be but The Associated Press learned they include a commitment from two congressmen that the City of Washington would indemnify the league for any legal judgments that result against it from the move back to the East Coast.

It was also learned that Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., and Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., had assured the league that it need not worry about the financial aspects of any possible suit.

Sisk is chairman of the congressional committee formed two years ago and committed to returning baseball to Washington.

The nation's capital has not had a team since Bob Short moved the Senators to Texas for the start of the 1972 season, when they became the Rangers.

Washington's first team, the original Senators, moved to Minnesota in 1961 but, in that same year, major league baseball's first expansion, a new team was formed for the capital.

San Diego City Atty. John Witt said: "We will file a $12 million antitrust suit in federal court against the Padres, the National League and Mr. Danzansky."

The suit will be filed because, in leaving San Diego, the league is abandoning the last 15 years of a 20-year lease on city-owned San Diego Stadium.

"We believe baseball enjoys the antitrust exemption only in the area of the reserve clause," said Witt, referring to player contracts. "We have filed a suit against the Padres organization for breach of contract."

In accepting Danzansky, the league rejected the bid to purchase the Padres by racetrack heiress Mrs. Marjorie Everett. League owners had been opposed to Mrs. Everett because of her involvement in an Illinois bribery scandal.

Dodgers Trade Pitcher Osteen

HOUSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers traded veteran left-handed pitcher Claude Osteen to the Houston Astros Thursday for slugging outfielder Jimmy Wynn. The Dodgers also sent minor leaguer Dave Culpepper to Houston, completing the deal.

Wynn, 31, who had been rumored on the way to the New York Mets, batted .220 with 20 home runs and 55 runs batted in for the Astros last season. He has been with the club since 1963 and had 223 career homers for Houston.

Osteen, 34, considered one of the Dodgers' top three starters along with Don Sutton and Andy Messersmith, was 16-11 with a 3.30 earned-run average in 33 games with Los Angeles in 1973. He has been with the Dodgers since 1965, coming to Los Angeles from the Washington Senators in a trade for mammoth slugger Frank Howard.

Cubs' Hundley Goes To Twins

HOUSTON (AP) — The Chicago Cubs and Minnesota Twins completed a trade of veteran catchers Thursday, the Cubs sending Randy Hundley to the Twins in exchange for George Mitterwald.

Hundley, 31, troubled with injuries throughout his career, batted .226 with 10 home runs and 43 runs batted in in 124 games for Chicago last season. He has been the Cubs' No. 1 catcher since 1966 but missed virtually all of the 1971 season with a knee injury.

Mitterwald, 28, has been with the Twins since 1968. He batted .259 in 1973 with 16 homers and 64 RBI.

California Trades Torborg To Cards

Houston (UPI) — The California Angels traded veteran catcher Jeff Torborg to the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday for lefthanded pitcher John Andrews.

The 32-year-old Torborg, with 10 years in the major leagues, batted .220 with one home run and 18 RBIs last season for the Angels while appearing in 102 games.

Crowder May Resign

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Eddie Crowder has hinted he may step down as head football coach at the University of Colorado.

Crowder, whose team won only five of 11 games the past season, is in Kansas City attending a meeting of Big Eight Conference coaches.

Crowder said he was taking some time to think things over, but when he was asked if it wasn't true that he had made some inquiries about a new coach for Colorado, he answered:

"I've made some inquires. At Colorado, everybody wants to win about 90 per cent" of the games. "Nobody who is doing that now is very interested in coming into the Big Eight Conference."

Crowder is also athletic director at Colorado. He made his remarks in an interview in Kansas City Wednesday night.

Crowder had said previously he was considering his situation at Colorado, where fans have been expressing unhappiness with the team's performance, and that he would make a decision soon.

Hall Appeals Sooner TV Ban

Kansas City (AP) — Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma appealed to the Big Eight Conference Thursday to reconsider the television ban imposed on the University of Oklahoma football team as part of a two-year probation stemming from recruiting irregularities.

Hall spoke to conference faculty representatives, the Big Eight's governing body. He was in the closed meeting for 30 minutes and said afterwards any decision would be announced by the faculty representatives "as soon as possible."

Oklahoma was placed on probation last Aug. 8. Under the action, Oklahoma cannot play in postseason football games in 1973 and 1974 and cannot appear on the football television series of the National Collegiate Athletic Association during the regular season of 1974 and 1975.

JFK To Host International Cage Tourney

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — National Championship teams from the United States, Canada, Mexico and Nationalist China have accepted invitations to compete in the International Invitational Women's Basketball Tournament here Jan. 5-6.

The John F. Kennedy College Patriettes, of Wahoo, Neb., will be host for the tourney. The Patriettes are the 1973 Amateur Athletic Union champions.

In the opening-round, the Taiwan All-Stars will meet the Mexican National team and U.S. team will face the Canadian National squad in the nightcap.

Officials said the tournament will be the first of its kind in the country and that future plans call for enlarging the field with the highest caliber teams from around the world.

Officials said the tournament is timely because of increased interest in women's sports and because women's basketball has been added to the slate for the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

Tammariello To SWL Post?

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Augie Tammariello, 35, offensive coordinator for the University of Colorado Buffaloes, was expected to be named head football coach at Southwestern Louisiana, school officials said Thursday.

Tammariello, who won All-American academic honors during his collegiate football career at Denver University from 1957 to 1959, has served for six seasons with the Colorado team.

He came to Colorado in 1968 from William and Mary where he also spent six years as a coach.

While at Colorado, Tammariello was instrumental in developing the Buffaloes' offensive line.

Bass Size Limits In Effect Jan. 1

A 12-inch minimum size limit on largemouth, smallmouth, and spotted bass will go into effect in Nebraska on Jan. 1.

The regulation was adopted in an effort to control excessive catches of the species, especially in small, heavily used lakes.

Husker Fan Meets Devaney At Hospital

Omaha (AP) — There are Big Red fans, and there are BIG RED FANS.

Jerry Korshoj, a patient at the Nebraska Methodist Hospital's Eugene C. Eppley Complex, definitely qualifies for the latter category.

Korshoj has been in the hospital since Oct. 1972, suffering from muscualr dystrophy and diabetes. But that hasn't reduced his enthusiasm for Nebraska's football team, nor his admiration for athletic director Bob Devaney.

Wednesday night, during an awards banquet for Methodist Hospital employes, Korshoj finally was able to meet Devaney.

Devaney, speaker at the banquet, was on his way to Kansas City, but took time to talk with the 25-year -old who said he has been a Cornhusker fan for "almost 26 years."

Upon learning that Korshoj stays "glued to the television set" whenever a Nebraska game is televised, Devaney said that next season he would arrange for Korshoj to occupy a seat along the sidelines.

"I attended Nebraska in 1966 and 1967," Korshoj said, "and missed very few games."

Wearing a red sweater, "Go Big Red" buttons and red cowboy hat, he predicted a tough game for Nebraska in the Cotton Bowl clash with Texas.

Earlier, Devaney told the banquet audience that there were times this season when he missed coaching. "But I don't miss the recruiting that goes on at this time of year."

He said he had done everything trying to recruit prospective players "from singing hymns to mothers who were choir directors to helping bottle homemade whisky in West Virginia."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 12-7
